Ford to issue call for national unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford goes before Congress tonight to call for national unity after the splintering era of Watergate while pledging his administration to fresh efforts to combat inflation.

Pausing briefly in his broad search for a vice president, Ford conferred with his advisers and labored over the speech as he began his third whole day in office.

His address before a joint session of the House and Senate, scheduled for 8 p.m. CDT, is to be broadcast nationally.

Aides said the new chief executive would promise "full, fresh efforts" to stabilize the economy. In the words of one spokesman, Ford sees inflation as "Public Enemy No. 1."

Arriving from his suburban home at 6:25 CDT, Ford beat many of his White House aides to work. He went directly to his Oval Office, where in the next three hours he held meetings with transition adviser Donald Rumsfeld, holdover White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst.

Aides indicated Ford would not set out a specific anti-inflation program in tonight's address, though detailed proposals will follow soon.

Following the morning meetings with aides, Ford got down to his shirtsleeves to devote full attention to the address. It also was expected to stress the need for national conciliation and would outline the "spirit and the tone of his administration," aides said.

They said Ford won't disclose the name of his choice for vice president in the address. The search for his successor won't be complete until late in the week, one aide said.

With a whirlwind series of 11 White House meetings on Sunday, Ford accelerated his consultations with congressional and political friends, who said women and Democrats are among those being considered for the No. 2 post.

After the meetings, Ford told a newsman "I'm not ruling out anything or anybody." Other sources said it was highly unlikely that he would stray from a list of about a dozen GOP leaders in making his selection.

Republican national chairman George Bush emerged from Sunday's meetings with the backing of an influential conservative, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

"He's Mr. Clean and that's what the country wants," Goldwater said of Bush, a former Texas congressman and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldwater, one of the 11 friends and advisers Ford met with in the separate meetings, also ranks high on the list of possibilities. He said he wasn't seeking the job but "sure, I'd accept it."

Bush's name also was mentioned by House GOP Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois after his meeting with Ford. And it was among three listed by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

But Scott said his first choice still is former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. He contended that the reported opposition to Rockefeller among party conservatives is "grossly exaggerated."

In Chicago, Rockefeller said whether he would accept the vice presidency if it is offered to him is an "iffy question." He refused to comment on his chances for selection, telling reporters, "The President has to make his own decision without any intervention or pressures of any kind."

Melvin R. Laird, former congressman and defense secretary, also met with Ford but wasn't available for comment afterward.

House GOP Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona estimated that Ford has a tentative list of 10 or so names he is considering, and Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York said he thought there were about 15.

One indication of the direction of the new administration was furnished by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton. He said Ford will put new emphasis on some Nixon administration policies in energy resources and environment, but not alter their basic intent.

Before moving through the meetings with party and political advisers, Ford conferred for a half-hour with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. A spokesman said Kissinger brought the President up to date on the Cyprus situation.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union pledged to continue its policy of detente and to seek with Ford a further improvement of SovietAmerican relations.

And in Cairo, the official Middle East News Agency reported that Ford's new administration has renewed the invitation to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to visit the United States before the end of the year. The invitation was extended by Nixon during his recent Middle East tour.

The President began his public day by worshipping at the Episcopal church near his suburban home.

Kneeling in a back row pew with his wife Betty and 17-year-old daughter Susan, Ford heard a special prayer for

Ford might help party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will have two early chances to show whether he takes the task of building a strengthened national Republican party more seriously than his two GOP predecessors.

The first will come when he picks a vice president, the second in his approach to November's midterm elections.

For all of their own personal success at the polls, neither Dwight D. Eisenhower nor Richard M. Nixon paid much attention to restoring the national Republican dominance that prevailed before Franklin D. Roosevelt's election to the presidency in 1932.

Eisenhower, the war hero turned statesman, had little interest. Nixon, a party man all his life, became more and more interested in his own political fortunes exclusively.

One of the legacies of the 1972 campaign, besides the scandal that ultimately drove him from office, was the bitterness in the GOP over the President's failure to help bring other Republicans in on his coattails.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, the 1972 GOP chairman, has said he felt like an outsider at Nixon's victory celebration. GOP lawmakers always felt Nixon could have saved several senators who suffered narrow defeats.

But Ford demonstrated in his long congressional tenure and his brief spell as vice president a devotion to fellow Republicans that could spell brighter GOP days ahead.

His major task, in recent months, has been to help Republican candidates, part of a broader effort to give leadership to the party at a time the national administration was floundering.

Some efforts this fall in behalf of Republicans seem inevitable, and an extended Ford honeymoon could be a big boost to GOP candidates.

Before that, however, Ford must pick his No. 2 man, and the choice will tell much about his views on the party.

In the past, Ford has talked of the need to broaden the GOP base, a view that led him to help liberal Republicans as well as conservatives and to suggest in 1968 that Nixon choose a liberal running mate.

Such a view now would appear to dictate the choice of a party moderate, either an established figure such as Nelson A. Rockefeller or a younger Republican such as Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon or Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts.

Many GOP liberals fear a great chance would be wasted if Ford picked a fellow conservative, such as Sen. Barry Goldwater or Gov. Ronald Reagan, especially since the choice must be approved by the Democratic-controlled Congress, rather than a conservatively based GOP National Convention.

Syrian military gets new leader

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syrian President Hafez Assad shuffled his country's military command today, bringing in as chief of staff the head of the Syrian team that negotiated last spring's Golan Heights disengagement agreement with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Maj. Gen. Hikmat Shehabi, in his mid 40s, headed Syria's military intelligence service before Assad promoted him from brigadier and gave him the army's top post. He replaced Maj. Gen. Youssef Shakkour, chief of staff during last October's Middle East war.

Shakkour was made a deputy defense minister, as was Maj. Gen. Naji Jamil, commander of the Syrian Air Force. The third deputy to Defense Minister Mustafa Tlas is Maj. Gen. Awad Bagh of artillery.

The changes, made by presidential decree, were the first in Syria's armed forces heirarchy since the October war.

They came as Syria's government-controlled press charged that Israel was preparing to launch a fifth war with the Arabs, a charge Israel has made repeatedly against Syria.

Shehabi is a long-time confidant of Assad. He led a Syrian military team to Washington last spring to negotiate with Kissinger Syria's terms for a separation of forces with Israel on the high ground separating the countries.

The eventual signing of the disengagement agreement helped open the way for Richard M. Nixon to become the first American President to visit Syria. Nixon and Assad announced during the visit the renewal of diplomatic relations between Washington and Damascus, severed during the 1967 Middle East war.

The radio broadcasts announcing the shakeup gave no official reason for it.

In addition to the Damascus charges of an impending Israeli attack on Syria, Lebanese newspapers claimed in Beirut that the Soviet Union has warned Palestinian guerrillas that Israel "is about to deal a major military blow on one or more Arab fronts."

The press reports charged that Israel was preparing for a two-pronged offensive across its frontiers with Syria and Lebanon. The objective was said to be "the destruction of Syria's military power and the elimination of the Palestinian guerrilla presence in Lebanon."

The independent An Nahar said the Soviet ambassador to Lebanon, Servar Azimov, conveyed the warning on Sunday to guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat.

Despite the Arab talk of war, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said on Sunday he expects Middle East peace talks to resume in Geneva this year.

Allon met with Kissinger last week in Washington as part of a new round of discussions among the American secretary of state and Israeli and Arab officials. Allon said last week's discussions brought no decisions on the next step in Israeli-Arab negotiations.

The Israeli foreign minister reported on the talks Sunday to Premier Yitzhak Rabin's cabinet.

At the same cabinet meeting, Defense Minister Shimon Peres said the government plans the most extensive practice mobilization of army reservists in a decade. Peres did not reveal when the callup will be but said foreign governments will be informed beforehand.

In Cairo, the official Middle East News Agency reported Sunday that President Ford had renewed an invitation to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to visit the United States. The invitation was first issued in the spring by former President Nixon.

Ford cabled Sadat that his administration will continue the effort for a durable Middle East peace "with the same force that characterized U.S. diplomatic efforts during the past nine months," the news agency said.

Cyprus compromise offered

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Britain proposed a compromise Cyprus peace plan at the Geneva talks today in an effort to overcome sharp differences between Turkey and Greece over the political future of the Mediterranean island.

The British plan apparently called for setting up a number of separate ethnic communities, but official Greek sources said Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros wants a "more subtle and loose form" of government on Cyprus than the British plan offers.

In Ankara, Turkey's Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit was reportedly considering the British plan. Turkey has insisted on a plan to divide the island into two distinct Turkish and Greek ethnic communities in a federated Cyprus.

A Turkish source at Geneva said: "Turkey can afford to wait. We have 40,000 troops on the island."

There were no new reports of fighting on Cyprus.

Greek Cypriot troops pulled out of four Turkish villages in eastern Cyprus Sunday night and United Nations troops moved in to keep the peace.

The Cyprus government freed 13 Turkish prisoners of war in exchange for five Greek Cypriots released by the Turks on Friday.

The sound of artillery fire Sunday night broke three days of quiet on the Mediterranean island. The shooting appeared to come from the Kyrenia Mountains about 10 miles north of Nicosia, where the invading Turkish army and Greek Cypriots fought until late Thursday.

Neither of the warring sides nor the U.N. peace force had immediate comment on Sunday's shooting.

The four armies on Cyprus — Greek Cypriot, Turkish, British and the U.N. peacekeeping force — reinforced their defenses on Sunday. Britain flew in 600 Gurkha mercenaries from Nepal and placed on alert in London 400 Royal Marine commandos.

In Geneva, the peace talks among the foreign ministers of Britain, Turkey and Greece came near collapse over Turkish demands to divide Cyprus among its Greek and Turkish populations. The three countries guarantee Cypriot independence under a 1960 treaty.

Kissinger reportedly telephoned Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit in Ankara and urged him to keep the talks alive. The secretary of state then met with President Ford for half an hour to bring him up to date on Cyprus.

The peace talks finally convened Sunday — delayed nine hours by urgent consultations among political and military leaders in Ankara and Athens — but little progress was reported.

Turkey, represented by Foreign Minister Turan Gunes, is demanding division of Cyprus into two federated states, Greek and Turkish. Gunes has claimed one third of Cyprus for the island's 18 per cent Turkish minority. The plan would involve moving around large numbers of families because Turkish communities currently are scattered through the island.

Poll indicates approval for resignation

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — More than three-quarters of Americans surveyed in a Gallup poll believe Richard M. Nixon "did the best thing" by resigning the presidency.

But more than half of those polled oppose an investigation of possible criminal charges against him.

In a telephone survey conducted by the polling organization last Thursday night and Friday after Nixon's resignation speech, 79 per cent of those questioned said he "should have resigned." Thirteen per cent said he "should have stayed" and 8 per cent gave no opinion.

Fifty-five per cent of the 550 persons questioned opposed a criminal investigation of Nixon. Thirty-seven per cent favored such an investigation, and 8 per cent offered no opinion.

On the question of whether the former president's "actions regarding Watergate were serious enough to warrant his resignation," 65 per cent said yes, 22 per cent said they were "not serious enough" and 13 per cent gave no opinion.

Asked to choose from a list of six possible vice presidential nominees suggested in the survey, 25 per cent chose Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater and 18 per cent chose former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California was next at 12 per cent. Tennessee Sen. Howard H. Baker and former U.S. attorney general Elliot L. Richardson received 11 per cent each. George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, received 1 per cent and the remaining 24 per cent gave no preference.

Tot puffs marijuana

MIAMI (AP) — Something new in potty training?

A woman arrested here on drug-smuggling charges told federal agents she frequently let her 20-month-old daughter Jamaica Naomi Russo puff on marijuana cigarettes.

"It makes her giggle," Mary K. Russo, 23, of Eagle Creek, Ore., was quoted as saying.

Mrs. Russo and two men were arrested here Saturday by agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration after the agents said they found an estimated $500,000 worth of cocaine strapped under her clothes. The trio had arrived on a flight from Bogota, Colombia.

The child was placed in custody of the Florida Division of Family Services, agents said.

Nixon aloof from staff, Ehrlichman says

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — As President, Richard M. Nixon purposely remained aloof from dozens of middle and lower level White House staffers and only rarely socialized with his top aides, says John D. Ehrlichman.

Only two or three times in the four and one-third years that Ehrlichman was a top aide to Nixon did the Nixons and the Ehrlichmans get together socially, Ehrlichman says.

Ehrlichman added in an interview Sunday that Nixon's relationship with his then-chief of staff H.R. Haldeman was about the same: numerous contacts during the working day but only rare private social get-togethers.

"That was not because of a character flaw necessarily, but because of his sense of what the relationship ought to be between the President and his staff," he said.

Ehrlichman also said that Nixon, who last Friday became the first president in U.S. history to resign purposely had little contact with middle and lower level White House staffers.

"We talked about the desirability of his just going out and going in and out of offices and saying hello to secretaries and dropping in on staff members," but Nixon rejected the idea, Ehrlichman said.

"I thought the decision was a mistake."

Ehrlichman said if Nixon had spent time talking with those employes "I think it would have enhanced staff performance." But he said he had no idea whether such a policy from the outset of the Nixon administration would have somehow prevented the entire Watergate affair.

Ehrlichman resigned his White House post as chief domestic affairs adviser to Nixon on April 30, 1973, amidst the then burgeoning scandal.

He said on Sunday that Nixon "surely must be very unhappy" now. "He's had a very personal defeat in Washington in a political sense and he's an individual who doesn't like to lose.

"It's been my experience that losing does not put him out of business, so to speak, doesn't down him for long. But certainly I'm sure he is what you would call a bad loser."

Ehrlichman said he thinks Nixon, now at home at his San Clemente, Calif., estate, will make a personal comeback and perhaps do some writing and eventually become a senior statesman of some sort.

Ehrlichman, who interrupted work in his garden for the interview, said he did not think Congress should continue with impeachment proceedings nor should court action be brought against the former president.

President Ford and your financial outlook

(First of a series)

What does the closing of the tragic Nixon administration and the opening of the presidency of Gerald R. Ford mean to you— in terms of your own pocketbook, your own personal financial security? In briefest summary, today's column will give you the overall view; tomorrow's will supply vital details.

First and above all, specifics It means the lifting of the pall of uncertainty and indecisiveness which has progressively darkened the economic landscape in the U.S for so long.

It means an end to the self-defeating economic policy of do-nothingness which has neither strengthened private enterprise in our land nor curbed the murderous inflation spiral nor inspired confidence in our leadership at home or abroad Quite the contrary.

These changes alone—inherent in the mere shift of leadership from Nixon to Ford—spell an economic plus of enormous significance.

Will help unite country

These achievements alone—more in the realm of psychology at this stage than of actual economic programs—will help unite the country, vastly improve public confidence, cheer investors particularly.

The very fact that the suspense about Nixon is over—and "Nixonomics" is gone—will help improve our economic relationships with our closest allies in Western Europe and Japan, make possible the economic cooperation among us which is so imperative to fight inflation, bring back back our foreign economic policy to the positive force it was before Nixonomics took over.

On economic policy at home and abroad, the Nixon White House always was weak, vacillating, nonintellectual in approach, and frankly based on flexibility rather than on any principles whatsoever.

Despite his public statements to the contrary, his sorry attempts to convince the TV audience that he was in charge—witness his last astoundingly vapid economic address—the former President did not care at all about economics, as he so shockingly revealed in his own presidential tapes. For instance, on the issue of relative currency stability (vital to world prosperity) Nixon remarked. "I don't give a (expletive deleted) about (that)."

The former President's top advisers—except for those he appointed at the very end and for Arthur Burns, the world respected economist he appointed as chairman of the Federal Reserve Board—also were philosophically against government intervention to curb runaway inflation and for do-nothingness. Their distaste for wage-price controls was a major reason the controls failed so miserably.

Bolstered vote-getting

As for monetary policy, the Federal Reserve first made the terrible error of pumping credit into the economy prior to the 1972 elections to bolster vote-getting prosperity. And then, when the White House defaulted on anti-inflation policies, the central bank adopted a brutally tough credit policy to help cool the inflation it had itself helped to create.

As the Nixon administration closed, the Federal Reserve was carrying virtually the entire burden of the inflation battle, using its only weapon of hard-to-get credit for such basic industries as housing and horrendously high interest rates. Yet this anti-inflation weapon is dangerously discriminatory and crude. And high interest rates on their own add to inflation, for the cost of borrowing is as much a part of doing business and to living as the cost of food and fuel.

Under President Ford, though, there will be a shift toward more use of fiscal policy (budget and taxes) to take some of the heat off the Federal Reserve and to permit an easing of the credit squeeze and a decline in interest rates.

There will be an immediate move away from do-nothingness as the tough anti-inflation men around Ford try to control the federal budget and cut enough spending to bring it into balance in real-life terms of dollar outgo equal to dollar income (rather than fancy concepts devised for economists).

Ford has said he believes Treasury Secretary Simon's hopes for budget cuts of as much as $20 billion are not feasible, but he also has said cuts of several billions are feasible and a balanced budget is essential.

In economic terms, Ford's administration is not a "new" ball game. For in economics, what is to happen already is happening, and it never is a "new" ball game. But there is a new umpire. There is a new sense of dependability and decency and drama even in Ford's undramatic self. It's all on the plus side.

Tomorrow: The No. 1 problem—inflation.

Dr. G. C. Thosteson

Should doctor charge for filling in the blanks?

Dear Dr. Thosteson: I recently requested from a physician a statement so I could claim his charges on my medical insurance claim.

Yesterday I received the insurance form back, uncompleted, and a note from the doctor advising me that there would be a $35 charge to complete this form.

Is this legal? — J.K.

It's probably legal — although remember, I'm not a lawyer.

But proper? That's another question.

I should like to know in more detail what the insurance company was demanding before venturing an opinion in this or any specific instance.

If it was a simple form requesting information as to when you were treated, for what and how long, then in my opinion there should be no added charge for filling it out. I cannot, as a matter of fact, recollect ever having felt that I should make a charge for doing this for a patient. In fact, an officer of a medical society with whom I discussed it went so far as to say that for a simple, routine form, a charge of that sort could be adjudged unethical.

But to give the other side of the coin, sometimes reports are demanded in such great detail that they require a good bit of time to complete, and it seems to me that in such an instance the doctor is entitled to be reimbursed for time that otherwise he could be devoting to other patients.

I would add that there has been resentment on the part of physicians against some insurance companies (I don't mean all) that demanded a degree of detail about a case that seemed all out of proportion — they wanted technical minutiae which appeared to have no real bearing on paying the claim.

Not knowing more than I do about the claim form in your case, I can suggest only this: Discuss it with the insurance company, and possibly, depending on the circumstances, with the grievance committee of the county medical society.

It is my personal opinion that the medical profession makes enemies when a doctor demands an extra fee for filling out a reasonable claim form. A patient needs such a report because, obviously, so does the insurance company before it authorizes payment.

In your case, $35 is no trivial amount of money, and I would think you ought to take the trouble to find out whether there was anything involved in the requested report to warrant such a sum.

Dear Dr. Thosteson: My husband, 69, had surgery last year for a malignancy of the prostate gland. The doctor removed the testicles because he said male hormones fed the cancer. The recovery was good and he looks well. But according to the doctor, he always will have to take female hormones.

Will he be able to have intercourse again? He shows no interest. As long as he is healthy and feeling well, is this a normal reaction? — Mrs. B.T.)S2

With the testes removed and medication with female hormones, he will be impotent and won't be interested in further sex activity.

This is, however, a successful treatment in certain cases involving cancer of the prostate. For what comfort it may be, for him if not for you, this type of impotence is less frustrating for a man than if it were due to psychological causes.

Note to Mrs. G.C: I can't conceive of a doctor telling a 12-year-old boy that "it is all right to smoke." If that really happened, I'd change doctors forthwith.

New dragon makes debut

FURTH IM WALD, Germany (AP) — A huge new firebreathing dragon was the star Saturday in the annual presentation of Germany's oldest peasant play, "Dragon Stab."

Sixty feet long, 11½ feet wide and 13 feet high, the dragon duels with a brave knight for a beautiful maiden, offered as a sacrifice to save the town.

Belching fire and snorting clouds of steam, the monster is stabbed to death by the knight.

Three men operate the dragon — one steering, another moving the legs and tail and the third playing the tape-recorded dragon's growl. Its predecessor was junked because of age.

Several thousand visitors are attending the six performances of the play through Aug. 18 in this lower Bavarian town near the Czech border.

A faithful promise

as a constant reminder of a promise that was made to be kept.

As boys and girls know, it is easy to make a promise and not easier to forget it. But promises are made to be fulfilled, not forgotten.

Consequently, if you promise Mother and Dad that you will do your homework, they believe you intend to keep the promise and a pledge card hung at each door will help you do it.

Your pledge to Mom and Dad may cover any number of things other than homework. Safety, for example. Your promise may be that you will not play in the street. In this case, print that promise on your pledge cards and hang them on the doors as the boy has done in the picture above.

The pledge might apply to neatness and be a promise to "pick up" your room each day before you go to school; it might apply to daily chores at home, such as helping with the dishes, or raking leaves, or making your own bed each morning.

Whatever your pledge may be, a set of pledge cards will help you keep it faithfully.

Burroughs was friend and teacher to many in Valley

Jack Burroughs, 59, died Friday and hundreds of students lost a great teacher, many a good friend and still others, a colleague.

Burroughs, 112 Crestview Drive, was a teacher in the Appleton Public School System for 34 years. He was a biology teacher, but it was only a label, because he was a craftsman, an amateur artist, a leader in a number of community endeavors and a nice guy.

"I feel sorry for all those students who will never have him for a course," one student commented after she learned of his death.

"He cared about all of us as individuals and he made classes interesting. He was strict though, and because of that there were those who didn't like him. But, boy, he really cared," she added.

He was instrumental in organizing an advance biology class while at Appleton High School-East. But he also organized a class together with his wife Evelyn, a combination science-English class for those who had trouble coping with the subjects at Appleton High School-West.

In Burroughs' book, no one was left out.

Emmett Hoks lost a good friend and a colleague. Both were in the science department at West at one time and, Hoks, who is now principal of the school, recalls some of the incidents both experienced up on the third floor.

"We would go up there on a Friday after Thanksgiving and make the batches of bacteria for the next class. It took a long time, and through the years we philosophized about many things in that day," he said.

But science earned Burroughs his daily bread. He was actively connected with drama and theater both in the high school and the community.

He operated the stage at AHS-W for many years as head of the backstage crew. He organized and directed the activities of the Curtain Call Production organization.

For years, he directed the commencement program each year at East, and was in charge of several Miss Appleton pageants.

He wrote, produced and directed several benefit shows for the Welcome Wagon organization, dividing his time between his two loves — science and the stage.

When he died of a heart attack at his summer home on Ox Bow Lake, Presque Isle, he left behind his widow and a sister.

There were no children, but in reality, there were hundreds who came to him for advice, for counseling, for a pat on the back. They came back year after year, and they were always remembered with warmth, caring and interest.

Memorial services will be held at 7 p.m. Wednesday at Trinity Lutheran Church. A memorial fund has been established.

NEW LONDON — Harold L. Strong, route 1, told police someone shot two holes, apparently with a .22 caliber rifle, in his house trailer Sunday.

Police said one shot penetrated the west side, going through a screen and curtain, traveled across the living room and went through a curtain and screen on the east side. The other hole was in the west side of the trailer near a door.

No one was reported in the trailer at the time the shots were fired.

Victor Arneson, 419 W. Northland Ave., told police someone took a police band radio from his home sometime since July 19. He valued the radio at $140.

The auto is owned by David Seidl, 1135 N. Washington St., Little Chute.

Ben J. Karls, 934 Park Ridge Ave., told police someone took a chest of tools and an electric saw from a truck parked in his driveway early Sunday. The articles were valued together at $250.

GREEN LAKE — Juvenile court action is pending here against five Appleton youths, arrested late Sunday for marijuana possession.

Police said the five boys were apprehended after they received a complaint of someone driving back and forth in a suspicious-looking vehicle on a back county road. The youths were released later to the custody of their parents.

Over $10 in American, Canadian and Mexican money was reported stolen in a break-in during the past week at the Wayne Peterman residence, 1527 S. Walden Ave. Police said a door leading to a bedroom was damaged in a unsuccessful attempt to open it.

State employers use pension funds as supplements

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — More Wisconsin employers are establishing employe pension funds to supplement benefits under the Social Security acts.

The state insurance department, which audits such funds under requirement of state law, said that at the end of 1973 employes covered by such plans numbered 508,000, or nearly a third of the non-farm work force of the state as counted by the state Department of Industry, Labor and Human Relations.

Employers also provide a variety of other benefit funds, the most important of them providing health and welfare benefits to about 183,000 employes. Another major category provides profit-sharing with employes.

The aggregate number of beneficiaries of all funds is about 933,000, or more than half of the non-farm employed force within the state.

Crimes up less in state than nation, Warren reports

MADISON, Wis. (AP) — State officials say the Wisconsin crime rate increased slower than the national rate during the first three months of this year, as compared with the same period in 1973.

Crime figures had been announced earlier, but Atty. Gen. Robert W. Warren said the national comparisons were not released until Friday.

The reportable crime rate increased by 2 per cent in Wisconsin, compared with 15 per cent nationally and 9 per cent for the north central region.

Wisconsin cities showed no first quarter increase in the crime rate, while the national figure for urban crime was up 12 per cent. The suburban crime rate for the state declined by 1 per cent for the three-month period, compared with a 22 per cent increase in the nation.

In rural areas of Wisconsin, the crime rate rose 13 per cent for the quarter, compared with 18 per cent nationally.

Town mutual companies continue to prosper in state

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — When the first farmers began transforming the forests of Wisconsin into crop land, they found that they could not buy insurance for fire and windstorm losses and banded together in neighborhood associations to provide indemnities for themselves.

More than a century after the first of such neighborhood cooperative arrangements was launched, the "town mutual" prospers and has become a staple of the neighborhood economy in hundreds of Wisconsin rural localities.

Last year such mutual companies collected $12,600,000 in premiums and had a ratio of loss to premium income of 52.5 per cent.

The typical contract now provides fire, plus extended coverage and liability insurance. Recent years have shown a trend for consolidation of smaller companies into larger and more efficient agencies. The peak number was 190. The state insurance department says that 136 of them are operating today.

Over the decades the legislature has steadily broadened the operating rights of the mutuals, including their customer service areas. The most recent change in the law permits them to operate in four contiguous counties, and authorizes the state insurance commissioner to permit a broader area of not more than eighth contiguous counties if he finds that there is a need for such expanded marketing of their services.

Another act of the legislature permits them to write non-property insurance, with the requirements that they obtain reinsurance for the liability with another company authorized to do business in the state.

About half of the local mutuals have used that authority.

State court's operating costs rising rapidly

Post-Crescent Madison bureau

MADISON — The cost of administering justice in Wisconsin is rising rapidly in the same pattern as public serivce cost inflation is in all directions.

At the directions of the legislature, a special committee of legislative representatives is examining the financial foundations of the courts and their supporting services which is now a complex pattern of state and county appropriations of tax funds, combined with an elaborate list of special fees assessed against litigants and others for a variety of services.

The portion of the aggregate expenses of the courts at state and locals levels borne by the state treasury has risen in recent times. But the major cost continues to be borne by the counties, which means that a substantial portion of it is financed by the receipts of the local property tax.

Last year the counties spent about $22 million for the operation of the courts, and the state spent $6 million, which included contributions to the counties and the cost of the state supreme court and its auxiliary services.

A staff report to the study committee suggested alternatives to the complex system of court fees, including a system that would be based on the ration of cost in individual court cases to the entire court budget.

Costs of supporting the court system will continue to rise. Recent legislation has advanced salaries substantially. Pressure is also building for improvement of the judicial retirement benefit scale.

Square dancers put life in convention

BY JAN KOWALSKI
Special to The Post-Crescent

"Sweet 16 will be supreme" as Appleton is host to the 16th annual state square and round dance convention on Friday, Saturday and Sunday. Square dancing puts a little life in the fun of more than 20,000 Wisconsinites from 8 to 80.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Foust, chairpersons from Green Bay, and their committees, have planned a hectic schedule for the 3,000 dancers that are expected to attend. The festivities will be held at the Appleton High School-East.

A pre-convention kick-off dance at the Darboy Club will be sponsored by Wolf River area dancers and callers on Thursday.

Convention visitors are welcome to dance or watch as thousands of feet fly to a hoedown beat. Five halls will simultaneously offer energetic youth, club level and challenge dancing. Round dancing will occupy two halls.

Workshops where better techniques and new figures are taught, seminars on calling and discussion panels on all phases of square and round dancing are scheduled in the mornings. A wild array of color will assault the eye in an area where exhibitors will set up booths to sell square dance clothes, accessories and records.

Dancing starts daily at 1 p.m. and ends at 11:30 p.m. A new caller takes the microphone every 10 minutes giving the dancers unlimited variety. After the dances, parties with more dancing sometimes last till dawn.

Modern western square dancing, although an American folk dance, is popular around the world. Since square dancing has its own language, foreign callers call phonetically and visitors from all countries can join the natives forming a people-to-people bond diplomats could envy.

You don't have to be a dancer in the conventional sense to learn to square dance, a teacher-caller commented. Classes of 25 to 30 lessons begin each September in the Fox Valley.

The friendliness of the dancers coupled with the challenge of doing what is called, as fast as it is called, is what holds your interest. Once you've learned the basic movements, you can participate in fun-level dancing. For more intricate figures, you can take advanced lessons. No matter what level you enjoy, the patterns vary with each caller.

"Like a good game of sheepshead, the 'cards' are always different," remarked a dancer who had traded in his deck for a pair of western boots.

And boots and western clothing are part of the fun. Women still wear bouffant petticoats and swirling skirts, but today the length is fashionable.

Teen girls flirt like brightly colored birds as they 'weave the ring' in mini square dance skirts. Most couples design their own matching outfits; many sew their own.

A popular feature at the convention is the style show where dancefs model their own and some exhibitors clothes. This year the show will be at the Appleton-East auditorium on Saturday at 3 p.m.

Modern western square dancing evolved from folk dances our early settlers brought from the British Isles. The French quadrille also was adapted, but with increased tempo. Some movements were taken from the Kentucky Running Set; instead of dancing in a circle as the early settlers did, sets or squares of four couples were used. Fiddles, fifes and drums or pianos provided the music and a prompter gave directions, sometimes while dancing, too.

Since the advent of sound equipment, the caller carries his orchestra in a suitcase. Brass and guitars have replaced traditional instruments in much of the music.

Broadway show tunes, top-40 hits and pop country-western songs are used for singing calls; "Hoedown" music is still used for patter calls. A tip is usually made up of one singing call, set to a melody, and one patter call for which the caller singsongs directions.

Square dancing was promenaded from the brawl-room to the ballroom by the late Lloyd Shaw of Colorado. His book, "Cowboy Dances," has guided thousands of callers and teachers around the world.

Due to his influence much of the roughness of early square dancing has been eliminated. Today smoothness is encouraged.

Square dancing is the American folk dance. Congress is now considering Bill No. HJR555 which will officially so proclaim it. Each year square dancing is featured at Milwaukee's Folk Fair.

Round dancing consists of couples dancing the same choreographed figures as they glide in a large circle. Each couple dances separately from the others, ballroom style. Round dance steps are memorized, but a leader often cues the dancers. At dances, rounds are featured before and between square dance tips. Solo and group exhibitions will be a convention highlight.

Exhibition dancing at homes for the aged, churches and shopping centers are enthusiastically attended by both square and round dancers eager to share the fun. Benefit dances are held for charitable causes.

Veterans' hospitals began using square dancing as therapy to rehabilitate patients after World War II. Even the blind and deaf as well as those regaining the use of limbs learn to dance.

Patterns that could be danced in wheel chairs were devised. Some dance clubs regularly visit nursing homes to help teach and maneuver wheel chair patients through the figures.

When you see the peppy teens twirl and high kick, you'll realize that this is not just a recreation for the oldsters. The Wolf River area boasts two teen clubs, the Teen Twisters of Appleton and the Title Town Teens of Green Bay.

Senior citizens enjoy a more sedate style but have just as much fun. Most clubs consist of a mixed group with ages ranging from 14 to 80. Camping clubs relax by firelight between tips of rollicking dancing; they dance out of doors or in a barn or pavillion or the campgrounds.

Callers accompany travel tours to Hawaii and foreign countries. Square and round dancing are a part of the planned activities.

You will find yourself happier and healthier square dancing, the number one couple recreatior in the nation. Dancers tell how this mild exercise has alleviated pain of arthritis and sciatica. Even heart patients use square dancing as part of their stay well therapy. Relief from mental tension is another bonus.

But primarily, square dancing is fun. And it's a great way to make new friends. So don your boots or slippers, promenade and put a little fun in your fun.

Feet will fly

To a hoedown beat, feet will be flying this weekend in Appleton as thousands of square dancers attend the annual State Square and Round Dance Convention. These teens meeting Sunday showed something of how it will be at Appleton High School East, headquarters for the event. Lisa Kramer and Chris Silver swing out at the Edward Jim Flynn home. Music education

Classes for handicapped slated

NEENAH - MENASHA — A separate music education program is being offered at the YWCA Community Center of Neenah-Menasha this fall for handicapped children.

Sheldon L. Fiedler of Fiedler Music, has initiated the program which offers handicapped children "a means of identification and self-expression, the development of positive attitudes for themselves and others, and provides an interest that may be developed at home."

According to the instructor, "Music is a valuable aid to the mental, perceptual or emotional growth of the handicapped, and its involvement could aid the awakening of perceptual awareness and develop auditory differentiation.

"Any progress or achievement gained here could carry over to other situations." Said Fiedler, "Music has something to offer most every handicapped individual."

In addition to his general piano and organ practice, Fiedler has had students with various degrees of disabilities throughout the years. He has been an educator in northeastern and southeastern Wisconsin since 1954.

He has had several years experience as a teacher and director of a special education program for the Wisconsin State Division of Vocational Rehabilitation.

Registration at the YWCA will begin Sept. 5. Classes will start Sept. 24 and continue through Nov. 26.

Workshops are slated by women's clubs

The Wisconsin Federation of Women's Clubs will hold two identical summer information sessions Aug. 21 and 22 in Sheboygan and Eau Claire. Mrs. George Mueller, president, Milwaukee, announced that department and division chairmen, junior chairmen and state officers will conduct morning and afternoon workshops.

The Sheboygan session, Aug. 21, will be at the Grand Executive Inn and the Eau Claire event, Aug. 22, will be at the Holiday Inn on Clairemont Ave. All clubwomen are invited to attend one of the sessions to learn about ways to Work For Wisconsin Communities, the State Federation theme.

Registration for both meeting will be from 8:30 to 9:30 a.m., with the afternoon workshops being completed by 3 p.m.

Mrs. Mueller announced other important upcoming events such as: Wonderful Wisconsin Week to be observed the week of Sept. 15; Trees for Tomorrow, Sept, 25-28 at Eagle River; Junior Fall Conference, Oct. 12, at Wausau, and the Great Lakes Conference (formerly Mississippi Valley Conference), Oct. 27-29 at Indianapolis, Ind.

College Notes

OSHKOSH — Marsha Brooks, 35 Woodmere Court, Appleton, has completed the MS-ED degree in reading at the University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh and was selected for Kappa Delta Pi, education honor society. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marshall Brewer, 1617 W. Lorain Court, Appleton.

Proposal used as bait

STEPHENSVILLE — In June Carolyn Wilkins, route 1, decided to let the newspaper world in on one of the "world's wackiest marriage proposals."

Two months later she received a $100 check for what Ralph Schenck, press relations person for the Florida based National Enquirer, called "a first-rate human interest story."

According to Carolyn Wilkins, the courtship with her husband, Arlon, really got off the ground in April of 1963. She had first met her suitor of 16 years when she worked at her folks' business, Greinert's General Store, in 1958.

She was only 15 at the time. Arlon was 33.

"I waited," she laughed. "But it was worth it." She graduated from high school and continued working at the community hospital.

Their courtship began with an outing to the Shawano Fair. There was a second date, and a third, and in September the two went off on one of their many fishing excursions and picnics.

"We fished all morning," she recalled. "Around noon he asked me to go back to the car and get the lunch."

What's known to her now, wasn't known to her then.

Arlon clandestinely baited the fishing hook with a metal tube. Inside it he put a little weight along with his picture and a note. He threw it back in and the weight in the tube pulled the bobber under the water.

"Then he yelled, 'I've got a fish on the line.' And he got me back there."

She reeled in the "fish" and recalls thinking that there was something suspicious going on. "It didn't fight back."

"I didn't know what to make of it," she said, still savoring the memory. "He said, 'Open it up.' So I did. He had a picture of himself and a note inside that read: 'Now that you've caught me, will you marry me?'"

Her answer was unequivocal. "Yes."

Eleven years later and $100 richer, Arlon and Carolyn still share many of the same interests. The emphasis on fishing, however, has become Carolyn's who spends each spring fishing for walleyes.

The money from the blurb in the Enquirer is being put to good use. It's being used to begin an addition on the home in the hope that they will be able to accommodate foster children.

West lobby was Disney world

All the drama wasn't on stage last week as the Disney spirit permeated the hallowed halls of Appleton High School-West.

The mini-Disneyland was recreated by the city's young people as part of the Recreation Department sponsored program.

The audience had come to watch a young cast portray the life and trials of "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs," a theatrical production under the direction of Anne Glasner. What greeted them in the lobby were carefree renditions painted and papier mached through all-too-short a summer.

Your children can play tennis at age 10

If your children have good eye-hand coordination — can catch and throw a ball reasonably well — and are physically agile, then they're ready for tennis, the fastest-growing family sport in the country.

That's the advice of John Ferris, manager of one of New York City's largest tennis instruction facilities.

"At one time tennis may have been thought of as an adult's game but now entire families are discovering the relaxation and good exercise the game offers."

Ferris says that although some children start playing younger, most are ready for an introduction to tennis at age 10 because their quickness of foot is pretty well-developed by this time.

"Foot-work is a key to good tennis," he says. "And this is where parents should try to get the advice and help of a pro, if possible, or at least that of the local high school tennis coach. It's knowing how to place the feet when serving, following through or hitting any shot that's crucial."

Scott Schultz joins staff of Girl Scout council

STEVENS POINT — A former Boy Scout, Scott Schultz, son of Mr. and Mrs. William Schultz, 13 Hilltop Court, Appleton, is working with the Woodland Girl Scout Council in Stevens Point and Wisconsin Rapids. He has been hired as program development specialist-field adviser, and is the first male the council has hired to hold such a position. This fact was reflected in the job description which refers to its older as "she."

As in many other councils, Woodland has had men serving on its board of directors for several years.

Schultz, a graduate of Appleton High School West and the University of Wisconsin-Stevens Point, was a teacher at St. Phillip Elementary School in Rudolph before accepting this position.

Judy Freiman, executive director, said she thinks Scott will do a real fine job. When he applied for the position, she said, the council could see no reason why Scott couldn't function within the organization. His duties, she said, will include working with the service teams, groups of experienced leaders who help new troop leaders.

"He will support the volunteers and help the leaders work more effectively with the girls," she said. "Ideally, the girls plan the activities and the adults help them become more independent."

Ann Landers

He needs a license

Dear Ann Landers: I have this problem with my husband. Doug works at a warehouse from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. After work he gives the men in the warehouse haircuts. He even cuts hair for the truck drivers in the neighborhood who have heard about him and come over.

Sometimes they pay him a little something in cash. Usually he gets paid in fish heads, rotten oranges, onions, apples or wilted heads of lettuce.

I never know what time Doug will be home for supper because of these darned haircuts. He is not a barber by trade and has no license. He also makes house calls on weekends which use up several gallons of gas.

My kids are growing up without a father because they are in bed when Doug leaves for work in the morning and asleep when he comes home at night. We never have dinner together like a family, except on weekends. I have pleaded with him to stop the haircuts but he says he needs the extra money—besides, he enjoys it. I have talked till I'm blue in the face and have headaches from all the aggravation. What should I do?—Ignored Wife

Dear Wife: Doug is engaging in a licensed trade without a license, which is against the law. Please tell him if he doesn't stop he could get into big trouble.

Your basic problem, however, is that your husband would rather give haircuts than come home to his family. You should see a counselor together and find out why. If he won't go, go alone. While two heads are better than one, one head is better than none.

Dear Ann: This letter is for "Lady In The Shadows"— the divorcee who is having an affair with a married man. He had an attack of indigestion in her apartment and she was scared to death it was a coronary. The woman was not concerned about her reputation but his. (He was a big wheel in town, and her boss.) I hope you will let me play "Ann Landers" today and give her some first-rate advice. Here it is.

Dear Lady: You, too, eh? And how many more of us are there? Thousands, I'll bet.

I'm a registered nurse, and although Ann's advice wasn't bad, I think my advice is better. If your lover becomes ill when you are together, do the following:

(1) Telephone a doctor and ask him to meet you at the emergency room of the nearest hospital.

(2) If you're in a hotel or a motel, call the desk and say, "I need an ambulance for someone who is ill in room 1313." (They aren't looking for any bad publicity either, so don't worry.)

(3) Pay the hotel bill when you leave—in cash.

(4) Unless it's an awfully small town, go to the hospital with him. Use his real name at all times. A good nurse in the emergency room can be a big help. Nothing will shock her.

(5) Give the nurse his wife's name and suggest that she be called. Then leave.

(6) Don't fall apart. Remember to tell the nurse if he has diabetes or any allergies. If you don't know, please find out now.—Another One

Dear One: My thanks for a very helpful letter. It sounds as if you are speaking from experience. I'm sure to catch some heat from readers who will resent the "blueprint" for cheaters, but if I can spare just one person from hurt and disgrace I'll take my lumps.

It's not always easy to recognize love, especially the first time around. Acquaint yourself with the guidelines. Read Ann Landers' booklet, "Love or Sex and How To Tell the Difference." For a copy, mail 35 cents in coin and a long, stamped, self-addressed envelope with your reguest to Ann Landers, P.O. Box 3346, Chicago, Ill. 60654. (Copyright 1974)

Laws of game do permit pass of 'forcing bid'

BY ALFRED SHEINWOLD

How forcing is a forcing bid. Does the law compel you to keep a forcing bid open? The laws of the game permit you to pass a forcing bid. To do so may be unwise, perhaps even criminally foolish — but it is permissible. When people say you "must keep a forcing bid open, they mean that a good partner will always do so.

Dorothy Hayden Truscott of the world championship women's team held the East cards in a game with Detroit expert Sylvia Stein. Mind you, it isn't necessary to be a national champion to pick up a hand like that, it might happen to any boy or girl who doesn't eat his oatmeal.

Mrs. Stein opened her powerful hand with two clubs, and Mrs. Truscott made the negative response of two diamonds. At this moment South decided to enter the breach with his spades.

West could afford to pass. She had made a forcing opening bid, and her partner was supposed to keep the bidding open.

Mrs. Truscott's problem was now very simple. How forcing is a forcing bid? What would happen if she decided to pass?

In this case Mrs. Turscott looked at her ghastly hand and wished she hadn't hear the alarm clock that morning. She wanted to pass! of course, but an expert who passes a forcing bid hears about it for the next 20 years — if she is lucky enough to get away from the table alive.

So Mrs. Truscott doubled. Everyone passed, and South wasdown two. Since honors don't count in tournament bridge, East and West scored 300 points — more than they coould make at any contract of their own.

So now you know what to do with a completely worthless hand. Get yourself a partner who knows how to pick up cards.

Ford argued impeachment in 1970

BY CLIFF MILLER
Post-Crescent staff writer

Four years ago, Gerald R. Ford came to the Fox Valley as an advocate of impeachment.

On April 28, 1970, the Michigan congressman and House minority leader appeared at a Green Bay testimonial for then Rep. John W. Byrnes, and plugged for the impeachment of Supreme Court Justice William O. Douglas.

He predicted confidently "that there will be an impeachment."

The effort to remove Douglas from the bench fizzled in the House, which at the time of Ford's appearance here was conducting an investigation through the Judiciary Committee.

Ford was a leader in the impeachment effort, accusing the justice, then 71, of conflict of interest in financial and other activities. An article written by Douglas and appearing in Evergreen Magazine, which Ford characterized as a "hardcore, pornographic magazine," had stimulated pressure for an impeachment inquiry.

Asked why he didn't "let nature take its course" with the aging justice, Ford replied, "There is a principle involved. I don't believe a man, because he's old, should escape the facts of life."

The conflict of interest charges revolved around allegations that underground figures were associated with a foundation in which Douglas was involved, and a fee paid for an article he wrote in another magazine before he participated in Supreme Court deliberations on a case involving the magazine.

During his Green Bay appearance, Ford denied to newsmen that the impeachment effort was a form of Republican retaliation for Senate rejection of two appointments by President Nixon to the Supreme Court.

Ford was a fairly frequent visitor to Wisconsin during his days in the House, usually turning up at campaign rallies and fund raising events for Republicans. He was and still is a close friend of Byrnes, who retired from the House at the end of his 14th term in 1973, and of former Rep. Melvin R. Laird.

"There is no district in the country that I would be happier coming to than that of John Byrnes," Ford declared. Byrnes' former House seat is now occupied by Rep. Harold Froehlich of Appleton. A Republican and a member of the House Judiciary Committee who voted for two articles of impeachment against former President Richard Nixon, Froehlich announced last week that Ford would appear in the Fox Valley Sept. 24 as vice president.

A spokesman for Froehlich's office said today that there has been no word from the White House whether the date will be kept or canceled. The spokesman said Froehlich's office will inquire in a few days, after giving the new President's staff time to review his schedule.

Ford also appeared in the Valley at least once for a nonpolitical event, as the June 3, 1966 University of Wisconsin-Oshkosh commencement speaker.

He warned against letting educational assembly lines "sweep us past all opportunities for quiet, clear-headed personal decisions."

He talked about reasons for "cheerfulness" about the future, urged young citizens to take active roles in public affairs, and said it was the ideological moderate who had the clearest view of political events.

Ford warned the 1966 commencement audience, "Government big enough to give us everything we want is big enough to take away everything we have."

Nixon departure greatly encourages Republican leaders

MILWAUKEE (AP) — David C. Sullivan, the state GOP chairman, says the prospect of an end to the Nixon administration scandals may make it fun to be a Republican again.

"It is damned discouraging to be a Republican in this day and age, especially a Republican leader," he said. "But a lot of them are going to be standing up a lot straighter now that they've gotten that damned albatross off their necks."

Ody J. Fish, former state chairman and now a member of the Republican National Committee, said Democrats as well as Republicans should be relieved to have Gerald R. Ford assume the presidency.

Politicians in general, he said, stand to benefit from a new White House image after months of voter disenchantment with political misbehavior.

Fish made his remarks on the eve of Nixon's resignation while Sullivan and other party officials were gathering in Lake Delton to weigh their party's 1974 election chances.

"Republicans and Democrats all seem to feel pretty much the same way," Sullivan said. "They are disgusted with politicians and politics in general."

"That was a pretty sad performance, not only on the part of the Nixon administration . . . but on the part of Congress too," he added.

Some voters and customary party supporters "didn't want to have anything to do with anybody regarding politics," he said. "Now that feeling is behind us."

Many Wisconsin Republicans have complained that Nixon's national reelection committee scooped up most of the available campaign donations in 1972 before state fund-raisers could get a fair share.

A campaign aide to William D. Dyke, the GOP candidate for governor this year, estimates $800,000 found its way out of Wisconsin to the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President.

The 1972 fund problem, and some unpaid expenses of an unhappy 1970 election campaign, saddled the state GOP with an uncomfortable debt which Sullivan and his co-leaders have trimmed to about $377,000 despite the Watergate business.

State Sen. Thomas Petri of Fond du Lac, carrying the Republican challenge to Democrat Gaylord Nelson in this year's U.S. senatorial contest, is typical of those who are feeling the party's fiscal pinch.

Petri asked the Lake Delton meeting to double the $10,000 share he has been alloted from the state party's relatively modest $180,000 campaign budget.

His request was sidetracked to committee with indications it would have to be rejected. Even $10,000 is generous compared with the $5,000 originally allocated in June.

But Fish said traditional political enthusiasm needs time to recoup.

"It is conceivable that Republican candidates have gained a little more, but I am not too sure they have," Fish said.

2 center psychiatrists will quit posts if not paid more

BY ARLEN BOARDMAN
Post-Crescent staff writer

The Outagamie County Health Center faces the possibility of losing its only two psychiatrists, who are part-time, and the center board of trustees will meet Wednesday to try to resolve the problem.

The two psychiatrists, Drs. Inman Haque and Sujhat Barney, both of the Winnebago Mental Health Institute, have informed the board that they have been offered a better financial package by an institution in Brown County — and are reluctant to pass it up, unless Outagamie comes up with an improved offer.

Eugene Speener, center superintendent, said he could understand the psychiatrists' position, but that he was concerned because the center couldn't legally operate its mental health program without a psychiatrist heading the medical team.

While Speener said the center "very possibly" could be left without psychiatric services for a period, he said this wasn't necessarily going to happen. If it did, he added, the center would have to appeal immediately to the state for permission to operate on an interim basis without the psychiatric leadership.

As of Friday, the psychiatric section of the center had 22 in-patient mental health patients, 11 alcoholism patients and 13 partial hospitalization patients, and more came in during the weekend, he said.

State law requires that each receive .8 hour per week of psychiatric time. The two part-time psychiatrists work about 28 hours per week, dividing time with the county's day hospital program.

On the psychiatrists' team are a social worker, psychologist, pharmacist, nurses, nurse assistants and industrial, occupational and possibly physicial therapists. The psychiatrists direct the program, are responsible for diagnosing and prescribing treatment, and for discharge of patients.

Speener said the board of trustees is aware of the urgency of the problem. He will meet with the pscyhiatrists Tuesday.

There was some question whether the board of trustees, some of whose duties were taken over by the Unified Mental Health Services Board under new state law, had the authority to resolve the Valuation goes up in Appleton

BY FRANK CHURCH
Post-Crescent staff writer

Preliminary assessed valuation figures from Appleton Assessor George Schwarzbauer show residential and commercial property values in the Outagamie County portion of the city up about 3.6 per cent this year.

Schwarzbauer called the increase normal.

Figures for the smaller Calumet County portion of the city show a 10 per cent increase in the same assessments. Schwarzbauer attributed that to residential development.

Meanwhile, the supervisor of industrial assessments for the state agency assessing 17 counties including Appleton in northeastern Wisconsin said inventories look like they will be "up considerably" in 1974, but overall industrial assessment figures will be forced down because of the newly granted exemption of machinery and equipment.

Robert A. Vosen, at the Fond du Lac office of the Department of Revenue, said about 10 per cent of the figures for Appleton industries are incomplete.

The figures from Schwarzbauer's office show that residential and commercial valuations in the Outagamie County portion of the city are up from $402,960,700 in 1973 to $417,654,975 this year.

Schwarzbauer said the $14,694,275 increase reflects the increases registered in those two categories over the past two years. Last year, overall valuation figures jumped 3.88 per cent, he said.

The figures for Calumet County show an increase from $26,740,325 to $29,424,900 in residential and commercial assessments. That's an increase of $2,684,575.

Schwarzbauer said the figures for Outagamie County could change between now and the time the Appleton Board of Review meets Oct. 7 to hear assessment complaints because his office is still in the process of reassessing property on the northeast side of the city.

He said the figures released today, however, which were required by the state on July 22 for the purpose of figuring state aids based on property values, are close to what the final figures will be.

Schwarzbauer's office was left with only the job of assessing residential and commercial property this year after the state legislature gave the job of industrial assessing over to the state Department of Revenue.

Vosen said the sharp increase in industrial inventories being shown throughout the Fond du Lac office's 17-county region might be industry's way of forming a hedge against inflation.

"It looks to me like perhaps some people are a little bit afraid of inflation and might be investing excess capital in inventories," anticipating substantial price boosts or shortages next year, he said.

Vosen said the partial exemption of the property tax on machinery and equipment this year — the legislature called for a phase-in of the exemption through 1977 — amounts to about 85 to 90 per cent of the actual machinery operating in plants throughout the assessment district.

The state will reimburse the municipalities for any losses due to the exemption of the formerly taxed property, so the cutback in industrial assessments will not mean an effective decrease in local government revenues.

Schwarzbauer, once his office completes reassessment of the northeast sector of the city, will mail out notices of assessment increases or decreases. He estimates that between 4,000 and 5,000 such notices will be mailed out this year, compared with a total of 6,500 mailed out in 1973.

A total of about 50 complaints were registered before the board of review last year, which is above normal because of the reassessment that began with last year's assessment roll.

Schwarzbauer expects a similar number this year, although he said he is uncertain what impact council debate over the fairness of the city's reassessment program might have on the numbers who register objections.

An alderman from a newly-assessed sector of the city complained that the city should implement its new assessments all at once, rather than over a

125th king of schut acclaimed in Holland

HOLLAND — Tony Van Zeeland of Cedarburg successfully brought down the last fragment of the bird at the 125th annual St. Francis Schut Sunday to earn the blue velveteen cape of king of this tradational Dutch festival.

One of the largest crowds in recent years, estimated at close to a thousand persons, watched the 100 shooters, including two women, bring down the bird in 930 tries.

The 33-year-old Van Zeeland, a native of Kaukauna, said he has participated in the event for about 10 years. He also shot off one of the wings, which earned him extra prize money. The 90-pound bird made out of belting and tar sat on a perch 100 feet high.

Before the rifle competition, the marksmen marched from St. Francis Church along with adults and children wearing Dutch dress. Several floats depicting scenes of Dutch life made up the entourage to the shooting grounds.

John Gerrits, Kaukauna, who has called the shots for 44 years, again shouted out the names, dominated by the "Vans" and the "Vers," mingled with a few names of German ancestry.

Daniel Vanderloop, Kaukauna, shot off the tail of the bird, and Donald Schmidt, Town of Holland, the head. Dan Wierschke is credited with the other wing.

Van Zeeland used a Sako 375 Magnum rifle built by Vic Busse of the Town of Holland. This was the second year he had used the weapon.

Light rain showers failed to dampen the crowd's enthusiasm for the schut, a tradition in this Brown County community since 1848. It is the oldest shooting competition outside of the Netherlands and was begun by the St. Francis Society, a church organization whose purpose was to help those in need.

The bird, a parrot, was adopted from the custom in the Old World where it was an emblem of the Hollanders who had participated in the Crusades to the Holy Land and were reminded of the beautiful birds they had seen there.

assuming those duties in addition to his present ones as counsel and secretary, an office he has held since 1956. Smith came to the institute in 1955. He succeeds A. Neil McLeod, who resigned.

The winner

Wearing the cape of the schut king, Tony Van Zeeland, a native of Kaukauna who now lives in Cedarburg, stands with his wife after making the successful shot that brought down the last fragment of the bird on the 100-foot perch pictured at the right. A crowd estimated at nearly a thousand turned out to see the 125th enactment of a tradition begun by members of the St. Francis Society in 1848 and based on the customs of their native Holland. Newsprint study still incomplete

The Appleton public works department cannot find an economical way of carrying out citywide recycling of newsprint, a fact which has slowed the feasibility study of the idea called for by Mayor James Sutherland early in January.

But Sutherland said today that he still wants the study completed and has "urged that we move forward with the study" in hopes of finding an economical way of recycling the one major recyclable item that is not now part of the city's recycling program.

The city already recycles cans and bottles. Newsprint, however, makes up one of the largest singie items of waste coming from the average home.

Sutherland asked Public Works Director Robert Miller to study the feasibility of newsprint recycling — done either by the city or private enterprise — last Jan. 8.

"The current high price being paid for newspapers for recycling and the pursuit of such a program by other communities indicate that such a study would be especially timely," he said in a letter to Miller.

Sutherland said today that his mind has not changed by the difficulty the department has had to date in coming up with an economical way to perform the job.

"We haven't really been able to find an economical way of picking the stuff up," said a public works official today.

Miller could not be reached for comment.

The staff members said he had "no idea" when the study would be completed.

Sutherland said the idea of special city refuse pickups of newsprint was discarded after that was found to be too expensive. The department spokesman said that a proposal to carry special boxes on city garbage trucks was also discarded, both because of cost and difficulties in handling pickups that would result.

Sutherland said today, however, that the "whole economic picture" must be fully explored before the final verdict on newsprint recycling can be finished. That includes not only the cost of the program and the price of the material the city collects and sells, but also the savings realized by eliminating materials that have to be collected by other means by the city.

890 fewer people

NEENAH-MENASHA — During the past year the population of Winnebago County has decreased by an estimate 890 persons according to statistics compiled by the Wisconsin Department of Administration.

The figures indicate that a year ago the total headcount was 131,413 and in 1974 dropped off to 130,523.

For the metropolitan Neenah-Menasha area which includes the two cities and two towns, the net effect was 188 fewer persons than a year ago.

The City of Menasha population estimate dropped from 14,960 in 1973 to 14,712 a decrease of 148 persons. In Neenah, there are seven less with the population now at 23,342.

The town of Menasha was the only local municipality to record a gain. The state estimates are that 9,279 persons live in the town an increase of 19 from the 9,260 a year ago.

The Town of Neenah lost 52 and dropped below the 3,000 mark. The population estimate is 2,994.

Although the current figures are only estimates the statistics do have a financial meaning since the formula used to compute state aids are based on $35 per person.

The City of Oshkosh joined the other cities in the county and lost 565 persons. It's current population figure is 51,192 compared with 51,757 a year ago.

Throughout the county the 890 loss in headcount will mean about $31,150 in reduced state according to the present formula.

While most municipalities were losing people, according to the report, the Town of Clayton increased its figure by some 84 people with a present population of 1,998.

Also recording increases were the City of Omro, 38 with a new population of 2,578; Village of Winneconne, 44 more and currently at 1,850, and Town of Vinland, six more and now at 1,523.

Losing in terms of population was Town of Winchester down to 1,059, a loss of 82.

A year ago, several cities, irate with population losses as determined by the department, challenged the formula but ultimately lost the case in court as a judge ruled that the method for computing the figures was as statistically valid as it could be.

Grunski misses a great party

MENASHA — Races, food, beer, dancing, and just plain fun pretty well sums up the offerings of the Second Annual Otto Grunski Memorial Cup Amateur Bicycle Race and Polish Festival held this past weekend in Menasha's Jefferson Park.

Despite the failure of the 513-year-old recluse inventor to make a showing, the event was, from all appearances, a smashing good time for all.

Several close and exciting bike races spiced the action on both Saturday and Sunday afternoons, while the menu was spiced with Polish foods, which were spiced with reckless abandon. (Czarnina (duck soup) can be quite a shocker to someone unaccustomed to it.)

Trophies were presented to the top three finishers in each of seven races, which included men's 14-17, 18-29, and 30 and over categories, as well as women's races in the same age brackets. There was also a special feature race for men 30 and over, featuring area celebrities.

Saturday night, Alvin Styczinski, leader of one of the state's favorite polka bands entertained a crowd estimated at about 3,000. More people were seen in the park both evenings than during the day, when the bike races took place. Sunday night's entertainment was provided by the Elmer Floyd Polka Band.

Races were close in nearly every category, as several times, the final outcome was in question until the last seconds of the races.

Races in the men's 14-17, 18-29, and over 30 categories were seven miles long, or ten laps on the seven-tenths of a mile course. The fastest time of the weekend was turned in by the 18-29 age bracket winner, Appleton's Andy Oliver. Oliver raced through the seven miles in a speedy 14:30, or an average of over 29 miles an hour.

The placers in the 14-17 group included winner Mark Koepke, Pete Klein, second, and Bob Dreier, third.

In the 18-29 bracket, winner Oliver was followed by Dan Minkebige and Thomas Puls, second and third, respectively.

Giles Clark was the winner of the 30 and over age group, in a close one over fast closing Mike MacGregor. Bill Brumder was third.

Jan Wikoff was the women's 14-17 winner over second place Julie Geiger. There was no third place. Women's races were three and a half miles long.

Paula Minkebige won the women's 18-29 category over second place Susan Viotto and third place Helen Nord.

The women's 30 and over bracket winner was Kathy M. Roesler. Carol M. Koehler was second and Judy Canaday third.

The Men's 30 and over celebrity race was won by Appleton's Alfred Gosha. Neenah Police Chief Vern Wollerman was second. Newton J. Snookers, America's Beloved Tooth Fairy placed third. Other racers in the special category included State Senate Candidate Robert Torgerson, who entered the race clad in shorts, striped knee socks, goggles and a cape, which bore the words, "Otto's for Torgerson." Menasha Mayor Victor Wiecki, Chief of Police Roman Rappert, and Fire Chief Joseph Skalmoski were also entered.

Menasha Police said that the crowd was remarkably well behaved, and that no incidents of disorderly conduct had taken place in the park, something which had plagued the Bathtub and Milk Carton races.

All-in-all the Grunski celebration was good clean fun. Otto couldn't have invented a better festival himself.

7,000 greet Makarios

LONDON (AP) — Archbishop Makarios, the ousted president of Cyprus, was greeted by an estimated 7,000 persons who cheered, wept and threw rose petals when he arrived to say mass at a Greek Orthodox Church.

The crowd was composed mainly of Greek Cypriots now living in Britain.

Joint effort to try and defuse fireworks

NEENAH — Two controversies that emerged from the City Council meeting last week may be resolved this Friday at the meeting of the finance and capital expenditures committee.

The finance committee of the Menasha City Council has agreed to meet with its Neenah counterpart on Friday to attempt settlement of the fireworks issue. The Neenah council turned down a proposal last week to pay the $3,415 fireworks bill left over from the Twin Cities Centennial. Some aldermen cited the lack of cooperation from Menasha as a principle reason they denied payment. The Menasha council in June voted not to split the bill, which resulted from the Centennial Corporation's inability to repay an advance from the City of Neenah.

The Neenah council decided to make another try at requesting the City of Menasha to split the fireworks bill.

Also raised last week at the Neenah council meeting was a 1970 lease involving the city and Bergstrom Paper Co. Ald. Michael Ellis charged that the lease as signed by city officials was altered from what the City Council had authorized at the time. The concern is that Bergstrom might be able to build a wastewater treatment plant on the 3.31 acres of land that was leased from the city to the paper firm. The land involved is a portion of the landfill site at the south end of Little Lake Butte des Morts.

Ellis said when the council authorized the lease, it was for parking and warehouse facilities for Bergstrom. The lease, however, mentions a wastewater treatment plant. Officials now are concerned because they are attempting to keep Bergstrom bound to a contract to join with the Neenah-Menasha wastewater treatment plant, which is slated for expansion. Bergstrom is attempting to withdraw from the contract and build its own plant. At issue is how and by whom the wording in the lease was changed.

Neenah Mayor Roman Hauser and City Atty. Daniel Murphy met with Bergstrom representatives Friday, and they will be at the finance committee meeting this Friday with a report. Finance committee chairman Jeffry Smith said the committee has requested that Bergstrom representatives be at the meeting.

Policy set for lunch program

The policy for free or reduced lunch rates for families unable to pay the full price of a meal, as set up by the National School Lunch and Special Milk Program, has been explained.

Local school officials participating in the program have adopted a special family size and income criteria for determining eligibility.

It runs from a family of one child with an income of under $2,910, to a family of 12 with an income of under $11,530. Families larger than 12 are allowed $670 for each additional member.

Also, the families who do not meet these criteria but have unusual expenses such as high medical expenses, shelter costs in excess of 30 per cent of the income, special education costs due to the mental or physical condition of a child, or disaster or casualty losses are urged to apply.

Application forms are being sent to all homes. Additional copies are available at the principal's office in each school. The information provided on the application is confidential and will be used only for the purpose of determining eligibility. Application may be sumbitted at any time during the year.

Under the provisions of the policy, a certain official in the school will be designated to review the applications to determine eligibility. If the parent is dissatisfied with the ruling, he or she may request, either orally or in writing, a hearing to appeal the decision.

The appeals are to be made to Leon Sawall, 1124 W. Roberts St., Appleton.

Crowds flock to fair attractions

MILWAUKEE — New attractions, old attractions and traditional farm judging contest brought 85,509 persons to the State Fair Sunday forcing fair officials to temporarily close the parking lots.

The total 1974 attendence is now 207,760, compared with 219,378 at the same time last year.

Some of the new attractions at the fair are proving to be real crowd pleasers. But traditional freak shows in the midway aren't as successful this year.

"It's hard to find good freaks any more," a spokesman for Royal American Shows, which operates the midway, said Sunday.

The sideshow "presents strange people entertaining in person," its posters say. But these days, most of its acts are brought in from underdeveloped foreign nations where medical science is not as advanced as in the United States.

If fairgoers weren't at the sideshows Sunday, they probably stopped in at one or both of the new attractions that continued to be among the most popular spots at the fair.

Spectators flocked to the milking parlor, where Wisconsin's finest dairy cattle are milked with modern equipment.

And despite twice as many seats around the veterinary surgery area in the agriculture building, there still weren't enough places to accommodate everyone who wanted to see minor surgery performed on small animals.

Heavy but brief thunderstorms struck the fairgrounds Sunday afternoon, sending crowds scurrying for cover.

The rains delayed one of the day's major attractions, the championship auto race at the track, for two hours. Gordon Johncock won the 200-mile Tony Bettenhausen event at a record speed before more than 20,000 persons.

In livestock barns, steers were being weighed in preparation for today's cattle competition and the governor's blue ribbon beef auction scheduled tonight.

Results of livestock judging Sunday were: William DeBruin of Monroe won the showmanship judging with his Brown Swiss dairy cow, and James Kambolz of Juda, who show Ayrshires, was reserve champion showman.

Daniel Basse of Muskego had senior and grand champion Guernsey female, while Waukesha County had the best county Guernsey herd.

Norman Magnussen of Lake Mills took the grand champion female award in Brown Swiss competition, while Jefferson had the best county herd. Louise Boettcher of North Freedom was the top senior Brown Swiss showman.

Other grand champions were:

Gordon Barlass, Janesville, Jersey female; Stanley Mastey, Nichols, Ayrshire female; Peggy Kuske, Osceola, milking Shorthorn female; Phillip Raisbeck, Lancaster, Shorthorn steer, and Scott Napp, Fennimore, Hereford steer.

Also Bob May, Mineral Point, crossbreds; Kurt Breitenbach, McFarland, all-other breeds steer.

Grand champions in the sheep barn were: Tom Johnson of Delavan, ram and ewe Oxford; Sharon Mullikin, Janesville, Hampshire ram; Bill Fish, Cedarburg, Hampshire ewe; Gail Finder, Stoughton, Shropshire ram, and Cindy Carlson, Janesville, Shropshire ewe.

Bob Johnson of Delavan had the champion Corridale ram and Janice Lee of Clinton the ewe.

In the swine competition, Tom Hieb, Black River Falls, had the champion Duroc boar, and Patti Frey, Columbus, the champion gilt. Arthur Nuttleman, West Salem, showed the champion spotted boar and Joe Dooley, Beloit, the gilt.

The champion Poland China boar was displayed by David Langrehr, Clinton, and the gilt by Brian Nuttleman, Bangor.

In Berkshires, Darrell Zelle of Brodhead showed the champion boar and Thomas Schomberg of La Crosse the champion gilt. The champion crossbred gilt was shown by David Ball, New Richmond, while Patti Frey, Columbus, showed the grand champion barrow rosette.

Psychiatrists...

problem, or could be held up by slow action by the unified board or the county board.

The concern came up as the center board discussed also the possibility of a full-time psychiatrist, instead of part-time ones, but with part-time psychiatric backup services.

Kelland Lathrop, a trustee, said he wondered if the county board would buy the idea for a full-time psychiatrist.

Sylvester Esler, center board chairman, said he liked the idea of a psychiatrist on the premises at all times.

Speener was directed to contact county Corp. Counsel William Schuh for an opninion on what authority the center board has in light of the unified board's emergence. There is the possibility the center board would contract psychiatrist services from the unified board which would do the hiring.

Speener said after the meeting that he believed the center board had the authority to meet or deny the present psychiatrists' requests for a salary increase, and surely the "responsibility to meet the needs of the patients."

The two part-time psychiatrists have been offered $35 per hour by a Brown County institution from the time they leave Winnebago until they return. They now are paid $30 per hour at Outagamie for only time on the job.

Speener said they wanted $35 per hour, but not portal to portal, from Outagamie. He noted that psychiatrists are hard to find, and they can just about pick their job.

In other business, Dr. James Laird, medical director of the health center, said the medical staff "was quite surprised and shocked at the allegations printed in The Post-Crescent to the effect that an employe had complained of the lack of work." The employe, unnamed, said some of the staff just sat around and didn't work.

Laird suggested that future complaints be handled in a different manner, "preferably without reporters in attendance."

several year period, because the newly-assessed properties were being taxed higher than others.

State Rep. William Rogers, D-Kaukauna, joined the dissenting alderman before the issue was finally settled in favor of the present program. State officials said somewhat higher assessments for reassessed property was legal.

During the debate over the issue, however, Schwarzbauer complained that residents were being given an unfair picture of the assessor and his program. He feared it might increase the number of complaints in the future.

The major increase ir residential and commercial assessments in the figures released by Schwarzbauer today is the more than $9.6 million increase registered for a category that includes new construction. Increases were also registered for land gained through annexation ($1.5 million plus), property formerly exempt ($45,825) and increases due to re-evaluations ($2,942,800).

Decreases were registered in categories labeled destroyed property ($61,425), property now tax exempt ($92,250) and decreases due to re-evaluations ($228,150).

Schwarzbauer said today that the citywide reassessment, if continued at its present pace, will be completed by the end of 1977. Originally, it was timed for completion two years earlier, but manpower turnovers and shortages have hampered that.

Schwarzbauer said he could shorten that period by one year with the addition of two to his staff.

Unified board gets leasing authority

CHILTON — The public grounds committee of the Calumet County Board of Supervisors Thursday gave permission to the property committee of the Unified Board to take a short term lease on facilities for use in its alcohol and drug abuse program to Feb. 1, 1975 when rooms in the Engler Building will be available.

Presently the mental health center is located in the Engler Building but other rooms are used as an apartment and the space will not be available until Jan. 1.

At a recent meeting of the Unified Board on rent, the Rev. David Sharpe reported that a Law Enforcement Assistance Administration (LEAA) grant that included authorization for rental of not less than 500 square feet of office and program facility space at a cost not to exceed $2,000 a year for rent and utilities had been approved. Total cost is expected to be $3,500 with the balance from county funds.

Charles Foresman of the mental health center viewed the facilities in question and reported them as "ideally suited" to the needs of the Unified Board.

Carl Wilbersheid, a member of the unified board property committee, who relayed the information to the Public Grounds Committee is investigating facilities to be used until the Engler property becomes available. It was felt that the Hume property is suitable.

In other business, it was agreed to have a representative of Stubenrauch Associates Inc., Sheboygan review the feasibility study for the proposed addition to the courthouse and new jail at 10:30 a.m. Aug. 23.

The committee also agreed that trees should be cut and rubbish removed from the Hume property planned for the expansion and a tour arranged for a visit to the new highway garage site at Sherwood and the Forest Junction facility.

Coming and going

In any race there have to be winners and losers. And there are also those who barely get going. Above Fran Dusik and Jo Ellen Litterio, both of Chicago, had problems getting started. The scenes are from the "world championship burial vault races" at Manawa's homecoming celebration Saturday. Jo Ellen got into the craft successfully in the running start but it floated away before Fran could get in. Below, Michael McInnis and his brother Patrick, show the form that won them the championship. (Post-Crescent photos)

Manawa crowns a pageant queen

MANAWA — The queen of this city's centennial events is 19-year-old Barbara O'Brien, who was crowned at the inaugural ball Saturday night.

She will preside over the week long festivities that today include Youth Day activities and a "Sweet Dreams" dance starting at 8 p.m. at Little Wolf High School.

The queen is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. . Joseph O'Brien, route 1, and has lived in the area all her life. She attends the University of Wisconsin-Stout.

Chosen to assist the queen were Kathie Rohde, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Evan Rohde, 436 Factory St., who was first runner-up, and Kay Oestreich, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Oestreich, 188 Walnut St., second runner-up.

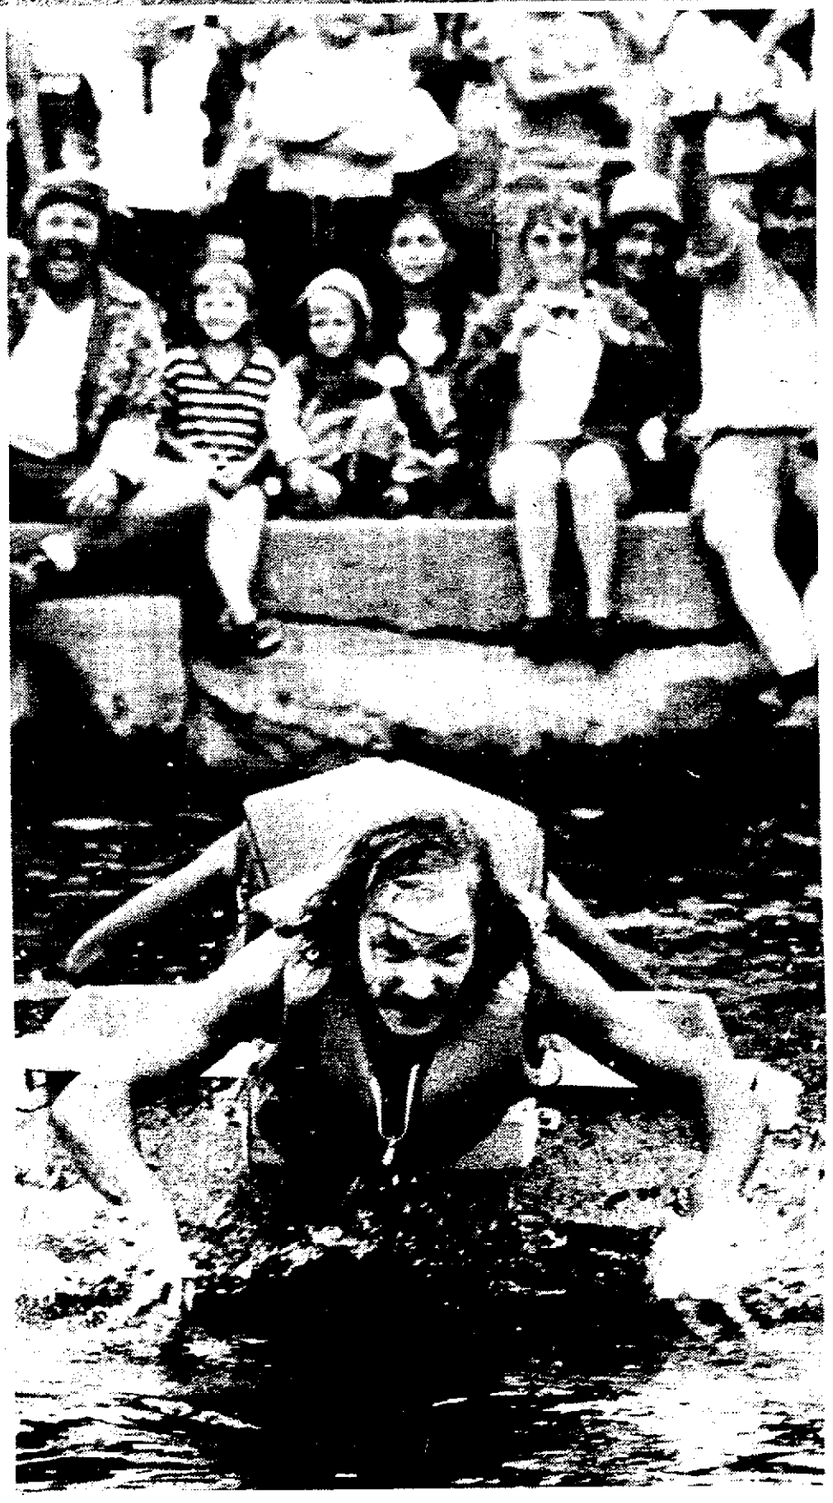
They were selected from 11 candidates during festivities on Saturday. A tea held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Diehl was followed by a dinner and dance.

Injured cowboy's condition improved

MANAWA — The condition of Roger Kilness, Osseo, Minn., who was injured while participating in the MidWestern Rodeo here July 6, is reportedly greatly improved.

Kilness is at the University Hospital in Minneapolis. He had been kicked in the head after being thrown from a horse. He was taken to the New London Community Hospital, transferred to Theda Clark Hospital, and then to Minneapolis.

He suffered a severe skull fracture and had been scheduled for surgery July 22.



125th schut king hailed as bird falls

HOLLAND — Tony Van Zeeland of Cedarburg successfully brought down the last fragment of the bird at the 125th annual St. Francis Schut Sunday to earn the blue velveteen cape of king of this tradational Dutch festival.

One of the largest crowds in recent years, estimated at close to a thousand persons, watched the 100 shooters, including two women, bring down the bird in 930 series.

The 33-year-old Van Zeeland, a native of Kaukauna, said he has participated in the event for about 10 years. He also shot off one of the wings, which earned him extra prize money. The 90-pound bird made out of belting and tar sat on a perch 100 feet high.

Before the rifle competition, the marksmen marched from St. Francis Church along with adults and children wearing Dutch dress. Several floats depicting scenes of Dutch life made up the entourage to the shooting grounds.

John Gerrits, Kaukauna, who has called the shots for 44 years, again shouted out the names, dominated by the "Vans" and the "Vers," mingled with a few names of German ancestry.

Daniel Vanderloop, Kaukauna, shot off the tail of the bird, and Donald Schmidt, Town of Holland, the head. Dan Wierschke is credited with the other wing.

Van Zeeland used a Sako 375 Magnum rifle built by Vic Busse of the Town of Holland. This was the second year he had used the weapon.

Light rain showers failed to dampen the crowd's enthusiasm for the schut, a tradition in this Brown County community since 1848. It is the oldest shooting competition outside of the Netherlands and was begun by the St. Francis Society, a church organization whose purpose was to help those in need.

The bird, a parrot, was adopted from the custom in the Old World where it was an emblem of the Hollanders who had participated in the Crusades to the Holy Land and were reminded of the beautiful birds they had seen there.

New town hall location on Fremont agenda

FREMONT — The relocation of the Fremont Town Hall necessitated by the construction of the U.S. 10 bridge over the Wolf River here, will be placed before the residents for discussion and decision when the board meets at 8 p.m. Aug. 8.

The hall is presently located where the east approach of the bridge and the highway join.

Residents will decide whether they want to build a new hall or move the present sturcture. A new location is mandatory.

Representatives of the state Division of Highways, have been invited to attend the meeting.

Nixon departure greatly encourages Republican leaders

MILWAUKEE (AP) — David C. Sullivan, the state GOP chairman, says the prospect of an end to the Nixon administration scandals may make it fun to be a Republican again.

"It is damned discouraging to be a Republican in this day and age, especially a Republican leader," he said. "But a lot of them are going to be standing up a lot straighter now that they've gotten that damned albatross off their necks."

Ody J. Fish, former state chairman and now a member of the Republican National Committee, said Democrats as well as Republicans should be relieved to have Gerald R. Ford assume the presidency.

Politicians in general, he said, stand to benefit from a new White House image after months of voter disenchantment with political misbehavior.

Fish made his remarks on the eve of Nixon's resignation while Sullivan and other party officials were gathering in Lake Delton to weigh their party's 1974 election chances.

"Republicans and Democrats all seem to feel pretty much the same way," Sullivan said. "They are disgusted with politicians and politics in general."

"That was a pretty sad performance, not only on the part of the Nixon administration . . . but on the part of Congress too," he added.

Some voters and customary party supporters "didn't want to have anything to do with anybody regarding politics," he said. "Now that feeling is behind us."

Many Wisconsin Republicans have complained that Nixon's national reelection committee scooped up most of the available campaign donations in 1972 before state fund-raisers could get a fair share.

A campaign aide to William D. Dyke, the GOP candidate for governor this year, estimates $800,000 found its way out of Wisconsin to the Finance Committee to Re-elect the President.

The 1972 fund problem, and some unpaid expenses of an unhappy 1970 election campaign, saddled the state GOP with an uncomfortable debt which Sullivan and his co-leaders have trimmed to about $377,000 despite the Watergate business.

State Sen. Thomas Petri of Fond du Lac, carrying the Republican challenge to Democrat Gaylord Nelson in this year's U.S. senatorial contest, is typical of those who are feeling the party's fiscal pinch.

Petri asked the Lake Delton meeting to double the $10,000 share he has been alloted from the state party's relatively modest $180,000 campaign budget.

His request was sidetracked to committee with indications it would have to be rejected. Even $10,000 is generous compared with the $5,000 originally allocated in June.

A Dyke aid said that, within days of Nixon's resignation, it seemed as though contributions were increasing.

But Fish said traditional political enthusiasm needs time to recoup.

"It is conceivable that Republican candidates have gained a little more, but I am not too sure they have," Fish said.

The committee also agreed that trees should be cut and rubbish removed from the Hume property planned for the expansion and a tour arranged for a visit to the new highway garage site at Sherwood and the Forest Junction facility.

Chairman Julius Schmidt reported that the Sherwood building would be moved 10 feet to the south and 10 feet closer to the highway leaving 65 feet between the two buildings instead of 75 feet.

A resolution from the County Park Commission put the panel on record giving the Highway Committee rights to all salvage materials from the Zimmerman Rendering Plant in return for razing the building.

It also was agreed that the $1,620 from the sale of the lot in Darboy be returned to the highway maintenance fund.

The committee toured the Clerk of Circuit Courts office to see what could be done about repairing or replacing the floor and adding additional counter space. The county nurse's office was checked in response to a request for more wiring for telephone service and furniture.

New administrator for Lakeview Manor named

WEYAUWEGA — The trustees of Lakeview Manor, Waupaca County's skilled care nursing home, announced that Myrin Boerst will assume the duties as full-time administrator on Sept. 1.

Boerst, 53, has been administrator of Shawano County Hospital, which this year was renamed Maple Lane Residential Care . This was prompted by the state's phasing out of all county hospitals.

The new administrator is a native of Shawano County. He will move to Weyauwega in early September. The Boersts have three sons and a daughter.

"We feel that we have a good man and the future of the facility looks good," William Freiburger, head of the board of trustees, said. "He has been very helpful to us during this transition period."

The trustees have ridden out a series of crises during the past several years to keep the county facility open and continue care for the residents and nonresidents committed when it was operated as a county hospital.

The facility was turned down by the county board for skilled nursing care several years ago when the board recommended a new building. The trustees have sought to comply with state demands for upgrading the physical plant. There were long waiting periods while the trustees endeavored to find out what the state would require in programs and plant changes to qualify as a skilled nursing care home.

A six month skilled-care nursing home license granted by the state, on June 30. The facility is now licensed as a 163-bed skilled nursing care home until June 30, 1975.

The sprinkler system, ordered by the state, has been in place for the past several months but there is a long list of changes to be made in the physical plant before the state gives full approval for the building as a nursing home.

An engineering study has been underway for the past six weeks and Freiburger said that this report will be ready for persentation to the plan committee on Tuesday and the county board in September.

The professional staff is being expanded and the trustees are continuing to recruit registered nurses and aides.

Trevino edges out Nicklaus for title

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — The clown prince of big time golf is back, and everybody is hailing him as a king.

"Do you feel like the old Trevino?" Lee Trevino was asked Sunday after he had beaten out Jack Nicklaus by a stroke in a cliff-hanging victory for the 56th PGA Golf Championship.

"I don't know how the old Trevino felt," the bouncy, ebullient Mexican-American retorted. "Maybe I will have to ask my wife."

It was hot and humid and there was no icy drink waiting for the new American professional champion.

"I will buy," Trevino said. "Can anybody cash a check."

He reached in his dark trousers and pulled out the first prize check for $45,000.

Everybody laughed.

Almost everybody laughs at Lee Trevino. He is loose and uninhibited. He is quick with the quip. He has a rich homespun philosophy. He is to golf what Yogi Berra and Dizzy Dean have been to baseball and Muhammad Ali—without Ali's occasional venom and militancy—to boxing.

He has enriched the game with both his skill and his Trevinoisms:

"If you keep your mouth shut too long, you get bad breath."

"I missed three fairways— the first and 15th."

"Sometimes, you got to change putters. You look at one so long you get tired of it, the way you do your wife."

"Now that I got all this money, maybe I'll buy the Alamo and give it back to the Mexicans."

"I come from such a poor family, my sister was made in Japan."

Since Trevino joined the tour in 1967, he has established himself as one of the giants of the game—twice U.S. Open and twice British Open victor, winner of 18 tour victories and banker of more than $1,270,000 in golf purses alone.

His first PGA triumph solidified his

Foxes' streak halted

BY ROGER PITT

Quad Cities took advantage of every opportunity Sunday at Goodland Field in ending the Appleton Foxes' winning streak at six games. The Angels posted a 6-4 comeback win.

Wisconsin Rapids pulled within four and one-half games of the Northern Division leading Foxes by downing Dubuque.

Manager Gory Lund's lineup didn't include either power hitting Kevin Bell or hard hitting Mike Ondina. Bell was held out because of back pains and Ondina was sick. Bell is to see a doctor today.

Despite their absence, Appleton pounded 11 hits and scored enough runs to win. A glaring error and walks were the difference.

Bill Kautzer, Nekoosa, retired the Angels without incident in the first and then his teammates went to work on Quad Cities' Steme Lacki.

Clyde Jeter singled to center. Nick Medrano hit a high chop down the third baseline and beat the throw to first. Ray Rudacille made a perfect bunt and beat the throw to first to fill the bases.

Lacki, apparently unnerved by the two infield hits, fired a wild pitch and Jeter scored with the two other runners advancing. After Mike Dlugach popped to second, Larry Walters looped a liner into left to score two runs. Lacki got the next two batters on infield outs.

Kautzer got himself into trouble in the second by walking Dave Drevnak and Geronimo Blanco to open the inning. Larry Rush grounded into a double play but Pat Kelly singled off Kautzer's glove to score a run.

Kautzer again opened the third by

Is Packer luck returning?

BY CLIFF CHRISTL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The good fortune that graced the Green Bay Packers two years ago and then deserted them last season may be returning.

At least, middle linebacker Jim Carter thought that way after Saturday night's victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Last year it seems like everytime we made mistakes we got caught. This year we're making mistakes, as you will with young people, but we haven't gotten burned," Carter said.

At a Sunday night press conference at St. Norbert College, Coach Dan Devine admitted luck plays a role in any team's season and, obviously, he'd like to see it remain on the Packers' side.

"Most of the time you make your own luck," he said. "But in a short 14-game season you have to have things work for you. Some years they don't, some years they do."

In commenting on the 13-6 win over the Cardinals, Devine seemed most impressed by the way the team had progressed.

"There was general improvement in about every facet of the game," he said. "We're starting to mold together as a cohesive unit. I'm encouraged with the team aspect. At this point, we're getting the maximum out of our guys.

"We all agreed we're changing our thoughts about the younger generation—some of us older cats. They're certainly dispelling the notion about the lack of desire among the younger generation."

Devine pointed out most of the players are under 25 years of age.

Individually, Devine had the most praise for running back Eric Torkelson.

"Eric Torkelson, we gave the game ball to," Devine revealed. "Jim Carter suggested we wait and let the coaches look at the film and give the game ball out. And it was a unanimous vote by the coaches to give the game ball to Torkelson. He did everything well. He ran well, blocked well, caught the ball well."

The only other rookie Devine mentioned was wide receiver Ken Payne. He hooked up on four passes with quarterback Jerry Tagge and most of them came on down-and-out patterns, which has been a weakness of the Packer passing attack.

In recalling his receptions, Payne said, "It seemed like everytime I turned out, the ball was right there. I couldn't miss it. I feel if you miss them, you might as well keep running toward the side."

Devine also praised all of the veterans, who received their first extended action.

The biggest play of the evening was a 61-yard jaunt by running back Don Woods early in the fourth quarter. Explaining the play, Woods said, "It was a 66 zone. I was supposed to fake to the weak side and I was supposed to go back to the strong side. And there was a big hole—big enough to drive a truck through."

14-day 'cooling off' period not popular with everyone

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the sublime to the ridiculous.

That's been the mood throughout the 42-day-old National Football League strike— and that's the mood now that it might be closer to a settlement than ever before.

The strike reached a watershed phase Sunday when the NFL Players Association's seven-member executive committee agreed to a suggestion by federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. that the veterans report to training camp for 14 days starting Wednesday, a sort of "cooling-off" period while stalemated negotiations continue, starting Thursday.

Thus, an even more critical stage may arise in two weeks, if a settlement isn't reached by then. It could go one of two ways.

Either the veterans could walk out en masse, once again threatening the season that is now barely a month away.

Or the strike could be, for all intent and purposes, broken— and the union's strength severely sapped—if a majority of the players, with two weeks of solid training under their belts, decide to stay in camp.

The decision to return to camp and play in the next two weeks of exhibition games was by no means unanimous. Although no tally was released, it appears the vote was a slim one, perhaps passing by only a 4-3 margin.

When the executive committee members left the Labor Department offices, scene of the prolonged talks, none of them was smiling. Some were obviously bitter, muttering that the new turn of events was a step toward ending not the strike but the union's strength.

Ed Garvey wasn't smiling either. But the executive director of the NFLPA was pragmatic about the situation, explaining that while the owners have the resources to withstand a prolonged strike, the players simply don't.

The idea of working—that is, reporting to training camp— during negotiations, then striking if no settlement is achieved, happens in industry regularly. And it was considered months ago when the players association first met in Chicago. But the idea was voted down then.

And now that they're willing—somewhat reluctantly—to report, at least one coach and one owner don't want them. Some others seem to feel it's just a gambit. And some players believe the strike's death knell has been sounded.

"I'm not about to take a veteran under those conditions," Houston Coach Sid Gillman said. "All it would do is disrupt our camp. To come in and then maybe walk out two weeks later is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of."

Bud Adams, owner of the Oilers, agreed. "We want players who will come to camp and stay," he said. "If they all come in, we may be forced to cut some of our rookies and then they (the veterans) might walk out again. We'd be back where we started, without any players."

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram said: "Very honestly, I don't like it ... Either you're going to play football or you're not going to play. The two-week grace period is not good. If they don't come back to play football, then they should stay out until they are ready to play football."

Lee Bouggess, a running back with the Philadelphia Eagles, thinks that if the players report to camp they won't leave it again.

"It sounds kind of shaky," Bouggess said. "If we go in, then at the end of the 14 days, how many players are going to want to come out? Once we get in there and do some hitting and get the soreness out, we won't be able to come back. It's not good for you to leave it once you've started to hit."

Ken Bowman, Green Bay's center and player representative, echoed Bouggess' fears. "Once football players get into camp," he said, "they have a natural tendency to get involved with the season and thoughts of Super Bowls and such. If things don't work out, they still might be reluctant to leave again."

Other players, though, expressed the view that they were returning in "good faith" and that they hoped the decision would speed up the settlement. And some owners and coaches concurred.

Baltimore running back Lydell Mitchell said the players are "trying to show our good faith to the owners by going to camp. We are hoping and will wait to see if the owners show some integrity and bargain in good faith.

"We think they will welcome us back. There's not much animosity. After all, we've been wanting to come back to camp, too," Mitchell added. "As far as leaving at the end of the 14 days, we hope that won't be necessary."

"Everyone is welcome to come back to camp," said Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants and the head of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining arm. "They are professional athletes and I think they'll come in and do their very best."

As for the owners' side of things, Mara said: "We are going to continue to negotiate as hard as we can for a equitable contract for both sides ... I really don't know what to say about Gillman. I'll have to look into it."

Mara also praised Usery, who has been involved in the negotiations for the past two weeks.

He has met with both sides jointly, separately and on a one-on-one basis in an effort to resolve the negotiations which began March 16 when the players presented their demands.

Reffner wins WIR feature over Somers

BY GARY VERCAUTEREN

KAUKAUNA — Tom Reffner used a borrowed engine in his 1970 Mustang to chalk up a triumph in the "Rawhide Mustang 100" at the Wisconsin International Raceway Sunday afternoon.

Reffner, who blew a motor Friday night at another raceway, borrowed an engine from a friend and won the race with a seven second cushion over Rich Somers of Stevens Point. Somers drove a 1973 Mustang.

Mike Miller of New Prague, Minn., gained the early lead with his 1970 Mustang before he was passed by Necedah's Jim Sauter on the sixth lap in the third turn.

Somers, Larry Detjens of Wausau and Dave Watson of Beloit moved up behind Sauter quickly as the four drivers diced for the top spot.

However, on the 17th lap the engine in a 1973 Camaro driven by Oak Creek's Jack Brewer blew apart as he was entering the first turn. Wisconsin Rapids ace Dick Trickle came into the corner full speed, hit the oil spot and slammed, rear-end first into the wall. Neither driver was able to continue.

Three laps later A. J. Moldenhauer of Madison crashed into the third turn wall with his 1970 Mustang bringing out the caution flag for the second time in the race.

Sauter maintained his lead with Joe Shear of S. Beloit making a charge to the front. Shear moved into second po-

Killebrew Day turns out that way

BY ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"I still get a chill every time Harmon bats," said Minnesota's Jerry Terrell, describing his feelings for teammate Harmon Killebrew, honored in special ceremonies Sunday.

A crowd of 27,303 turned out for Harmon Killebrew Day at Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, and the 38-year-old slugger did more than his share to send the customers home satisfied.

Killebrew singled home Bobby Darwin to give the Twins a 1-0 lead in the first inning against the Baltimore Orioles, then singled home Larry Hisle to tie the game at 3-3 in the fifth. Terrell followed with a two-run single to put Minnesota in front for good.

"The adrenalin was really flowing," said Terrell, who grew up in southern Minnesota and watched Killebrew during his prime. "They should have a day for him every day because he's such a great guy ...."

Killebrew, who ranks fifth on the all-time home run list with 556, choked back tears during the hour-long pregame ceremony. He turned over all proceeds from the event to charity.

"It was really an enjoyable day for me and my family," said the reserved, soft-spoken Killebrew. "I was glad I was able to get a couple of hits ... you've got to be lucky."

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Kansas City beat Milwaukee 5-2, Cleveland edged Chicago 3-2, Boston trimmed Oakland 2-1, New York nipped California 5-4 and Detroit blanked Texas 9-0.

Indians 3, White Sox 2

Charlie Spikes hit his 16th home run of the season for the Indians and scored twice, and Frank Duffy delivered what proved to be the winning run with a fifth-inning single to top Chicago.

Red Sox 2, A's 1

Veteran Juan Marichal blanked Oakland on three hits but left the game after eight innings when his shoulder stiffened. Diego Segui pitched the ninth and managed to hold on for the victory.

The 35-year-old Marichal, who came off the disabled list Aug. 2, raised his record to 5-1.

Yanks 5, Angels 4

A two-out error by California's Rudy Meoli opened the door to a two-run New York seventh inning that helped the Yankees beat the Angels.

With the score tied 2-2, Meoli threw high to first base on Thurman Munson's ground ball, and the Yankees went on to score two runs on a walk to Jim Mason and singles by Sandy Alomar and Elliott Maddox.

Rangers 9, Tigers 0

Jim Bibby posted his 16th victory against 14 defeats by stopping Detroit on four hits. He struck out four and walked three.

walking two leadoff batters. A sacrifice bunt by Ponciano Cruz and sacrifice fly by Kent Froede pulled the Angels within a run.

Eric Thomas singled, Kautzer bunted him to second and Jeter singled him home in the fourth for Appleton's final run.

Quad Cities tied the game in the seventh as Blanco lined a single to center, Rush walked and Danny Miller grounded a single to shallow left to fill the bases. Paul Sands replaced Kautzer and pinchhitter Hank Merenda delivered a run-scoring single to left. Cruz hit a sacrifice fly to center for the second run.

The Angels scored an unearned run in the eight to take the lead and deal Sands his eighth loss in a dozen decisions despite an ERA of just under 1.10.

Jim Peters opened the eighth with a triple to right-center which Appleton outfielders had trouble retrieving. After Sands walked Drevnak, a ground ball was hit to shortstop Eric Thomas who made a good throw to third to get Peters in a run down. Appleton third-baseman Ken St. Pierre, holding the ball in his bare hand, made the tag on Peters but the ball was knocked loose and the runner scored. Sands struck out the last two batters to end the inning. Quad Cities added an insurance run in the ninth on a walk and triple.

Four of Quad Cities runs were scored by batters who had walked.

Appleton plays Quad Cities in a 7:30 p.m. game tonight and will play Dubuque in a doubleheader Tuesday beginning at 6:30 p.m.

Little Chute slates physicals for boys

Physical examinations for all boys intending to participate in interscholastic sports at Little Chute High School will be conducted Wednesday beginning at 12:15 p.m.

Athletes are to pick up exam cards in the high school office prior to the exam. These cards must be signed by parents and presented to the doctor at the time of examination.

Packers offer refunds

GREEN BAY — The Green Bay Packers have announced that they will offer refunds for tickets for Saturday night's Bears-at-Packers game in Lambeau Field to anyone who desires them. Refunds must be applied for by 8 p. m. Thursday.

Those desiring refunds should either mail or personally deliver their tickets to the Packer Ticket Office, 1265 Lombardi Ave. (P. O. Box 3726, Green Bay). The refund policy, begun by the Packers for last Saturday's Shrine game in Milwaukee, is in effect because of the NFL players' strike.

Patriot pickets unnecessary

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Gail Morris and several other wives of striking members of the New England Patriots joined their husbands on the picket line Sunday, urging fans to stay away from the game.

Gail, whose husband Jon is the Patriots' player representative, and the other women passed out leaflets. But they're assistance on the line hardly was needed.

In their 1974 home debut at 61,279-seat Schaefer Stadium, the Patriots drew only 17,992 fans, who saw them lose 21-6 to the New York Giants in Sunday night's only National Football League exhibition game.

By comparison, the two teams drew 60,243 for Schaefer's first game, also an exhibition, in 1971.

Of course, by comparison, the competition in the game hardly was the same, since the Giants and Patriots had few veterans on hand because of the players' strike.

The strike figures to slow up the turnstiles again tonight, when Chicago visits Pittsburgh, San Francisco plays at Cleveland and Buffalo invades Kansas City.

In games on Friday night it was Detroit 6, Baltimore 3 and Houston 48, Washington 3. In Saturday's games it was Oakland 28, Atlanta 16; Cincinnati 35, Philadelphia 21; Miami 45, New Orleans 20; Green Bay 13, St. Louis 0; Denver 27, Minnesota 21; Dallas 13, Los Angeles 6 and San Diego 20, New York Jets 14 in overtime.

As in the first weekend of preseason play, attendance drooped considerably. A scant 6,792 fans showed up in Baltimore and only 14,768 were in Washington. But the crowds weren't overly slim everywhere. In Los Angeles, 46,668 people were at Memorial Coliseum and Milwaukee drew about 43,000 for the Green Bay game.

Nine-year quarterback Randy Johnson, one of New York's few non-striking veterans, directed a 73-yard touchdown march in the opening period, sending rookie Charlie Jessamy on a short plunge for the score. Then Johnson passed 13 yards to Steve Maier for a fourth-period touchdown.

The Patriots got field goals of 46 and 24 yards from rookie John Smith of England in the second period. But late in that quarter, rookie Larry Jones, the national 440-yard champion from Northeast Missouri State, returned a Smith kickoff for a 100-yard New York touchdown sprint.

Appleton South wins tourney

Appleton South recorded a 9-2 victory over Menasha as Brian Marceau hurled a 2-hitter to win the championship of the first Valley Invitational Baseball Tournament for 13-year-old boys at Hoover Park diamond.

Sheldon Anderson had a single and double for the winners while Mike Shabo, Terry Sievert and Bill Weber had two singles each.

Wolf River West took the third place title by defeating Kaukauna, 9-2. Mike Verkuilen was the winning pitcher while Al Krueger doubled and Mark McNamee had two singles.

In the semi-finals, Menasha defeated Kaukauna, 5-4 behind the pitching of John Rippl while Appleton South posted a 8-1 win over Wolf River West as Sheldon Anderson did the pitching with a 2-hitter and 10 strikeouts.

Scores from early round games in the tournament included Wolf River West 4, Appleton North 3; Appleton South 10, Wolf River East 0; Menasha 14, Clintonville 13 and Kaukauna 11, Kimberly 9.

Campanella ready to manage San Diego

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Campanella, former star catcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers whose baseball career ended tragically with an auto accident in 1957 that left him a paraplegic, says he is ready to accept a job as manager of the San Diego Padres.

Campanella was quoted by sports writer Dick Young in a dispatch from Cooperstown, N.Y., in Monday's editions of the Daily News. He said he was offered the position by Padres' President Buzzy Bavasi.

"Buzzy asked me about it. I told him not right now," Young quoted Campanella as saying. "That was in February. He mentioned it again when I saw him two weeks ago. I told him I'd think about it. I have thought about it and I'm ready."

Bavasi was unavailable for comment and the Padres were en route to St. Louis after dropping an 8-1 decision Sunday in Pittsburgh.

John McNamara is the present Padre manager, hired just before the start of spring training.

Campanella, 52, managed in Venezuela and Mexico during his years of Negro League ball. He was signed by the Dodgers one year after Jackie Robinson and broke the color line in the American Association with St. Paul in 1948.

Campanella, a Hall-of-Famer, said he's not interested in being the first black manager, he just wants to manage.

"It isn't to be the first black manager," he said. "That sort of stuff can't get you across the street. A man should want to manage because he loves baseball and thinks he can do the job."

Campanella, confined to a wheelchair for 17 years, said he turned the San Diego offer down originally because he thought his disability would hurt him.

"I saw myself being wheeled into the dugout," he explained. "I thought a manager should have respect, not pity."

But he's changed his mind. "I have given it a lot of thought the last two weeks. My health is good now and I believe I'm ready."

Super Mex scores

Lee Trevino reacts to a birdie putt during the final round of the 56th PGA Tournament at Tanglewood Golf Course, Clemmons, N.C. Sunday. Trevino edged Jack Nicklaus to win his first PGA title. (AP wirephoto)

Trevino edges out Nicklaus for title

CLEMMONS, N.C. (AP) — The clown prince of big time golf is back, and everybody is hailing him as a king.

"Do you feel like the old Trevino?" Lee Trevino was asked Sunday after he had beaten out Jack Nicklaus by a stroke in a cliff-hanging victory for the 56th PGA Golf Championship.

"I don't know how the old Trevino felt," the bouncy, ebullient Mexican-American retorted. "Maybe I will have to ask my wife."

It was hot and humid and there was no icy drink waiting for the new American professional champion.

"I will buy," Trevino said. "Can anybody cash a check."

He reached in his dark trousers and pulled out the first prize check for $45,000.

Everybody laughed.

Almost everybody laughs at Lee Trevino. He is loose and uninhibited. He is quick with the quip. He has a rich homespun philosophy. He is to golf what Yogi Berra and Dizzy Dean have been to baseball and Muhammad Ali—without Ali's occasional venom and militancy—to boxing.

He has enriched the game with both his skill and his Trevinoisms:

"If you keep your mouth shut too long, you get bad breath."

"I missed three fairways— the first and 15th."

"Sometimes, you got to change putters. You look at one so long you get tired of it, the way you do your wife."

"Now that I got all this money, maybe I'll buy the Alamo and give it back to the Mexicans."

"I come from such a poor family, my sister was made in Japan."

Since Trevino joined the tour in 1967, he has established himself as one of the giants of the game—twice U.S. Open and twice British Open victor, winner of 18 tour victories and banker of more than $1,270,000 in golf purses alone.

His first PGA triumph solidified his

14-day 'cooling off' period not popular with everyone

WASHINGTON (AP) — From the sublime to the ridiculous.

That's been the mood throughout the 42-day-old National Football League strike— and that's the mood now that it might be closer to a settlement than ever before.

The strike reached a watershed phase Sunday when the NFL Players Association's seven-member executive committee agreed to a suggestion by federal mediator W.J. Usery Jr. that the veterans report to training camp for 14 days starting Wednesday, a sort of "cooling-off" period while stalemated negotiations continue, starting Thursday.

Thus, an even more critical stage may arise in two weeks, if a settlement isn't reached by then. It could go one of two ways.

Either the veterans could walk out en masse, once again threatening the season that is now barely a month away.

Or the strike could be, for all intent and purposes, broken— and the union's strength severely sapped—if a majority of the players, with two weeks of solid training under their belts, decide to stay in camp.

The decision to return to camp and play in the next two weeks of exhibition games was by no means unanimous. Although no tally was released, it appears the vote was a slim one, perhaps passing by only a 4-3 margin.

When the executive committee members left the Labor Department offices, scene of the prolonged talks, none of them was smiling. Some were obviously bitter, muttering that the new turn of events was a step toward ending not the strike but the union's strength.

Ed Garvey wasn't smiling either. But the executive director of the NFLPA was pragmatic about the situation, explaining that while the owners have the resources to withstand a prolonged strike, the players simply don't.

The idea of working—that is, reporting to training camp— during negotiations, then striking if no settlement is achieved, happens in industry regularly. And it was considered months ago when the players association first met in Chicago. But the idea was voted down then.

And now that they're willing—somewhat reluctantly—to report, at least one coach and one owner don't want them. Some others seem to feel it's just a gambit. And some players believe the strike's death knell has been sounded.

"I'm not about to take a veteran under those conditions," Houston Coach Sid Gillman said. "All it would do is disrupt our camp. To come in and then maybe walk out two weeks later is the most ridiculous thing I've ever heard of."

Bud Adams, owner of the Oilers, agreed. "We want players who will come to camp and stay," he said. "If they all come in, we may be forced to cut some of our rookies and then they (the veterans) might walk out again. We'd be back where we started, without any players."

Kansas City Coach Hank Stram said: "Very honestly, I don't like it ... Either you're going to play football or you're not going to play. The two-week grace period is not good. If they don't come back to play football, then they should stay out until they are ready to play football."

Lee Bouggess, a running back with the Philadelphia Eagles, thinks that if the players report to camp they won't leave it again.

"It sounds kind of shaky," Bouggess said. "If we go in, then at the end of the 14 days, how many players are going to want to come out? Once we get in there and do some hitting and get the soreness out, we won't be able to come back. It's not good for you to leave it once you've started to hit."

Ken Bowman, Green Bay's center and player representative, echoed Bouggess' fears. "Once football players get into camp," he said, "they have a natural tendency to get involved with the season and thoughts of Super Bowls and such. If things don't work out, they still might be reluctant to leave again."

Other players, though, expressed the view that they were returning in "good faith" and that they hoped the decision would speed up the settlement. And some owners and coaches concurred.

Baltimore running back Lydell Mitchell said the players are "trying to show our good faith to the owners by going to camp. We are hoping and will wait to see if the owners show some integrity and bargain in good faith.

"We think they will welcome us back. There's not much animosity. After all, we've been wanting to come back to camp, too," Mitchell added. "As far as leaving at the end of the 14 days, we hope that won't be necessary."

"Everyone is welcome to come back to camp," said Wellington Mara, owner of the New York Giants and the head of the NFL Management Council, the owners' bargaining arm. "They are professional athletes and I think they'll come in and do their very best."

As for the owners' side of things, Mara said: "We are going to continue to negotiate as hard as we can for an equitable contract for both sides ... I really don't know what to say about Gillman. I'll have to look into it."

Mara also praised Usery, who has been involved in the negotiations for the past two weeks.

He has met with both sides jointly, separately and on a one-on-one basis in an effort to resolve the negotiations which began March 16 when the players presented their demands.

Reffner wins WIR feature over Somers

BY GARY VERCAUTEREN

KAUKAUNA — Tom Reffner used a borrowed engine in his 1970 Mustang to chalk up a triumph in the "Rawhide Mustang 100" at the Wisconsin International Raceway Sunday afternoon.

Reffner, who blew a motor Friday night at another raceway, borrowed an engine from a friend and won the race with a seven second cushion over Rich Somers of Stevens Point. Somers drove a 1973 Mustang.

Mike Miller of New Prague, Minn., gained the early lead with his 1970 Mustang before he was passed by Necedah's Jim Sauter on the sixth lap in the third turn.

Somers, Larry Detjens of Wausau and Dave Watson of Beloit moved up behind Sauter quickly as the four drivers diced for the top spot.

However, on the 17th lap the engine in a 1973 Camaro driven by Oak Creek's Jack Brewer blew apart as he was entering the first turn. Wisconsin Rapids ace Dick Trickle came into the corner full speed, hit the oil spot and slammed, rear-end first into the wall. Neither driver was able to continue.

Three laps later A. J. Moldenhauer of Madison crashed into the third turn wall with his 1970 Mustang bringing out the caution flag for the second time in the race.

Sauter maintained his lead with Joe Shear of S. Beloit making a charge to the front. Shear moved into second po-

Foxes' streak halted

BY ROGER PITT
Post-Crescent staff writer

Quad Cities took advantage of every opportunity Sunday at Goodland Field in ending the Appleton Foxes' winning streak at six games. The Angels posted a 6-4 comeback win.

Wisconsin Rapids pulled within four and one-half games of the Northern Division leading Foxes by downing Dubuque.

Manager Gory Lund's lineup didn't include either power hitting Kevin Bell or hard hitting Mike Ondina. Bell was held out because of back pains and Ondina was sick. Bell is to see a doctor today.

Despite their absence, Appleton pounded 11 hits and scored enough runs to win. A glaring error and walks were the difference.

Bill Kautzer, Nekoosa, retired the Angels without incident in the first and then his teammates went to work on Quad Cities' Steme Lacki.

Clyde Jeter singled to center. Nick Medrano hit a high chop down the third baseline and beat the throw to first. Ray Rudacille made a perfect bunt and beat the throw to first to fill the bases.

Lacki, apparently unnerved by the two infield hits, fired a wild pitch and Jeter scored with the two other runners advancing. After Mike Dlugach popped to second, Larry Walters looped a liner into left to score two runs. Lacki got the next two batters on infield outs.

Kautzer got himself into trouble in the second by walking Dave Drevnak and Geronimo Blanco to open the inning. Larry Rush grounded into a double play but Pat Kelly singled off Kautzer's glove to score a run.

Kautzer again opened the third by

Is Packer luck returning?

BY CLIFF CHRISTL
Post-Crescent News Service

GREEN BAY — The good fortune that graced the Green Bay Packers two years ago and then deserted them last season may be returning.

At least, middle linebacker Jim Carter thought that way after Saturday night's victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"Last year it seems like everytime we made mistakes we got caught. This year we're making mistakes, as you will with young people, but we haven't gotten burned," Carter said.

At a Sunday night press conference at St. Norbert College, Coach Dan Devine admitted luck plays a role in any team's season and, obviously, he'd like to see it remain on the Packers' side.

"Most of the time you make your own luck," he said. "But in a short 14-game season you have to have things work for you. Some years they don't, some years they do."

In commenting on the 13-0 win over the Cardinals, Devine seemed most impressed by the way the team had progressed.

"There was general improvement in about every facet of the game," he said. "We're starting to mold together as a cohesive unit. I'm encouraged with the team aspect. At this point, we're getting the maximum out of our guys.

"We all agreed we're changing our thoughts about the younger generation— some of us older cats. They're certainly dispelling the notion about the lack of desire among the younger generation."

Devine pointed out most of the players are under 25 years of age.

Individually, Devine had the most praise for running back Eric Torkelson.

"Eric Torkelson, we gave the game ball to," Devine revealed. "Jim Carter suggested we wait and let the coaches look at the film and give the game ball out. And it was a unanimous vote by the coaches to give the game ball to Torkelson. He did everything well. He ran well, blocked well, caught the ball well."

The only other rookie Devine mentioned was wide receiver Ken Payne. He hooked up on four passes with quarterback Jerry Tagge and most of them came on down-and-out patterns, which has been a weakness of the Packer passing attack.

In recalling his receptions, Payne said, "It seemed like everytime I turned out, the ball was right there. I couldn't miss it. I feel if you miss them, you might as well keep running toward the side."

Devine also praised all of the veterans, who received their first extended action.

The biggest play of the evening was a 61-yard jaunt by running back Don Woods early in the fourth quarter. Explaining the play, Woods said, "It was a 66 zone. I was supposed to fake to the weak side and I was supposed to go back to the strong side. And there was a big hole—big enough to drive a truck through."

Killebrew Day turns out that way

BY ALEX SACHARE
AP Sports Writer

"I still get a chill every time Harmon bats," said Minnesota's Jerry Terrell, describing his feelings for teammate Harmon Killebrew, honored in special ceremonies Sunday.

A crowd of 27,303 turned out for Harmon Killebrew Day at Metropolitan Stadium in Bloomington, and the 38-year-old slugger did more than his share to send the customers home satisfied.

Killebrew singled home Bobby Darwin to give the Twins a 1-0 lead in the first inning against the Baltimore Orioles, then singled home Larry Hisle to tie the game at 3-3 in the fifth. Terrell followed with a two-run single to put Minnesota in front for good.

"The adrenalin was really flowing," said Terrell, who grew up in southern Minnesota and watched Killebrew during his prime. "They should have a day for him every day because he's such a great guy .. ."

Killebrew, who ranks fifth on the all-time home run list with 556, choked back tears during the hour-long pregame ceremony. He turned over all proceeds from the event to charity.

"It was really an enjoyable day for me and my family," said the reserved, soft-spoken Killebrew. "I was glad I was able to get a couple of hits ... you've got to be lucky."

Elsewhere in the American League Sunday, Kansas City beat Milwaukee 5-2, Cleveland edged Chicago 3-2, Boston trimmed Oakland 2-1, New York nipped California 5-4 and Detroit blanked Texas 9-0.

Indians 3, White Sox 2

Charlie Spikes hit his 16th home run of the season for the Indians and scored twice, and Frank Duffy delivered what proved to be the winning run with a fifth-inning single to top Chicago.

Red Sox 2, A's 1

Veteran Juan Marichal blanked Oakland on three hits but left the game after eight innings when his shoulder stiffened. Diego Segui pitched the ninth and managed to hold on for the victory.

The 35-year-old Marichal, who came off the disabled list Aug. 2, raised his record to 5-1

Yanks 5, Angels 4

A two-out error by California's Rudy Meoli opened the door to a two-run New York seventh inning that helped the Yankees beat the Angels.

With the score tied 2-2, Meoli threw high to first base on Thurman Munson's ground ball, and the Yankees went on to score two runs on a walk to Jim Mason and singles by Sandy Alomar and Elliott Maddox walking two leadoff batters. A sacrifice bunt by Ponciano Cruz and sacrifice fly by Kent Froede pulled the Angels within a run.

Rangers 9, Tigers 0

Jim Bibby posted his 16th victory against 14 defeats by stopping Detroit on four hits. He struck out four and walked three.

Eric Thomas singled, Kautzer bunted him to second and Jeter singled him home in the fourth for Appleton's final run.

Quad Cities tied the game in the seventh as Blanco lined a single to center, Rush walked and Danny Miller grounded a single to shallow left to fill the bases. Jim Peters opened the eighth with a triple to right-center which Appleton outfielders had trouble retrieving. After Sands walked Drevnak, a ground ball was hit to shortstop Eric Thomas who made a good throw to third to get Peters in a run down. Appleton third-baseman Ken St. Pierre, holding the ball in his bare hand, made the tag on Peters but the ball was knocked loose and the runner scored. Sands struck out the last two batters to end the inning. Quad Cities added an insurance run in the ninth on a walk and triple.

Four of Quad Cities runs were scored by batters who had walked.

Patriot pickets unnecessary

FOXBORO, Mass. (AP) — Gail Morris and several other wives of striking members of the New England Patriots joined their husbands on the picket line Sunday, urging fans to stay away from the game.

Gail, whose husband Jon is the Patriots' player representative, and the other women passed out leaflets. But they're assistance on the line hardly was needed.

In their 1974 home debut at 61,279-seat Schaefer Stadium, the Patriots drew only 17,992 fans, who saw them lose 21-6 to the New York Giants in Sunday night's only National Football League exhibition game.

By comparison, the two teams drew 60,243 for Schaefer's first game, also an exhibition, in 1971.

Of course, by comparison, the competition in the game hardly was the same, since the Giants and Patriots had few veterans on hand because of the players' strike.

The strike figures to slow up the turnstiles again tonight, when Chicago visits Pittsburgh, San Francisco plays at Cleveland and Buffalo invades Kansas City.

In games on Friday night it was Detroit 6, Baltimore 3 and Houston 48, Washington 3. In Saturday's games it was Oakland 28, Atlanta 16; Cincinnati 35, Philadelphia 21; Miami 45, New Orleans 20, Green Bay 13, St. Louis 0; Denver 27, Minnesota 21; Dallas 13, Los Angeles 6 and San Diego 20, New York Jets 14 in overtime.

As in the first weekend of preseason play, attendance drooped considerably A scant 6,792 fans showed up in Baltimore and only 14,768 were in Washington. But the crowds weren't overly slim everywhere. In Los Angeles, 46,668 people were at Memorial Coliseum and Milwaukee drew about 43.000 for the Green Bay game.

Nine-year quarterback Randy Johnson, one of New York's few non-striking veterans, directed a 73-yard touchdown march in the opening period, sending rookie Charlie Jessamy on a short plunge for the score. Then Johnson passed 13 yards to Steve Maier for a fourth-period touchdown.

The Patriots got field goals of 46 and 24 yards from rookie John Smith of England in the second period. But late in that quarter, rookie Larry Jones, the national 440-yard champion from Northeast Missouri State, returned a Smith kickoff for a 100-yard New York touchdown sprint.

Appleton South wins tourney

Appleton South recorded a 9-2 victory over Menasha as Brian Marceau hurled a 2-hitter to win the championship of the first Valley Invitational Baseball Tournament for 13-year-old boys at Hoover Park diamond.

Sheldon Anderson had a single and double for the winners while Mike Shabo, Terry Sievert and Bill Weber had two singles each.

Wolf River West took the third place title by defeating Kaukauna, 9-2. Mike Verkuilen was the winning pitcher while Al Krueger doubled and Mark McNamee had two singles.

In the semi-finals, Menasha defeated Kaukauna, 5-4 behind the pitching of John Rippl while Appleton South posted a 8-1 win over Wolf River West as Sheldon Anderson did the pitching with a 2-hitter and 10 strikeouts.

Scores from early round games in the tournament included Wolf River West 4, Appleton North 3; Appleton South 10, Wolf River East 0, Menasha 14, Clintonville 13 and Kaukauna 11, Kimberly 9

Campanella ready to manage San Diego

NEW YORK (AP) — Roy Campanella, former star catcher of the Brooklyn Dodgers whose baseball career ended tragically with an auto accident in 1957 that left him a paraplegic, says he is ready to accept a job as manager of the San Diego Padres

Campanella was quoted by sports writer Dick Young in a dispatch from Cooperstown, N Y , in Monday's editions of the Daily News He said he was offered the position by Padres' President Buzzy Bavasi

"Buzzy asked me about it I told him not right now," Young quoted Campanella as saying "That was in February He mentioned it again when I saw him two weeks ago I told him I'd think about it I have thought about it and I'm ready."

Bavasi was unavailable for comment and the Padres were en route to St. Louis after dropping an 8-1 decision Sunday in Pittsburgh.

John McNamara is the present Padre manager, hired just before the start of spring training.

Campanella, 52, managed in Venezuela and Mexico during his years of Negro League ball He was signed by the Dodgers one year after Jackie Robinson and broke the color line in the American Association with St Paul in 1948.

Campanella, a Hall-of-Famer, said he's not interested in being the first black manager, he just wants to manage.

"It isn't to be the first black manager," he said. "That sort of stuff can't get you across the street A man should want to manage because he loves baseball and thinks he can do the job "

Campanella, confined to a wheelchair for 17 years, said he turned the San Diego offer down originally because he thought his disability would hurt him

"I saw myself being wheeled into the dugout," he explained "I thought a manager should have respect, not pity "

But he's changed his mind "I have given it a lot of thought the last two weeks My health is good now and I believe I'm ready "

Slumping Brewers still fighting

KANSAS CITY (AP) — The Milwaukee Brewers complained Sunday that wherever they hit the baseball, somebody seemed to catch it.

Kansas City caught it often enough to give the Royals a 5-2 victory that dropped the Brewers 10½ games behind Boston in the American League East.

It was the 11th loss in the last 13 games for Milwaukee, which opens a series at Texas tonight, and Manager Del Crandall said the breaks have not been breaking for the Brewers.

"I don't like to talk about it," he said, "but we've had more things happen to us on the field than anytime I've ever seen in my entire career. "We can't keep them from scoring. They get bloop hits, bleeders. We hit the ball hard and they're outs."

The Royals got to Milwaukee starter Clyde Wright (8-17) for all five runs, and Wright didn't even last the first inning.

Fred Patek tripled to open the first. Amos Otis doubled him home and then scored on Jim Wohlford's single.

Curt Bevacqua singled and Fran Healy blooped a double to left center to drive in two more runs. Healy scored on Hal Cowen's single off reliever Kevin Kobel, who shut out the Royals the rest of the way.

Kobel, shelled on Friday when he started, gave up five hits, walked one and struck out one in his 7 1-3 inning performance.

Royals' starter Paul Splittorff (12-12) went eight innings and wriggled out of three jams to preserve the victory.

The Brewers took a brief lead on Ken Berry's first-inning home run, his first of the season, then rallied in the ninth for one run.

After Lindy McDaniel relieved Splittorff, Crandall sent up four consecutive lefthanded pinch hitters. Three, Dave May, Mike Hegan and Bob Hansen, singled for a run, then Don Money singled off reliever Doug Bird to load the bases.

But George Scott struck out, then Deron Johnson sent Cowens to the right field wall for the final out.

"I thought it was going up against the wall," Crandall said of Johnson's long fly. "But ther that's how the breaks have been going against us on this streak."

Asked if the Brewers were wilting under the slump, Crandall noted the ninth-inning rally as evidence of team spirit.

"They didn't quit, did they?" he asked. "They just went out there and battled back."

Jim Colborn (6-10) was scheduled to start today against the Rangers' Steve Hargan (96).

sition on the 54th lap and was attempting to overtake the leader when he tangled with Somers in the fourth turn resulting in Shear's racer spinning around.

The caution flag was again waved with Shear joining the rear of the pack. In the meantime Reffner had moved into second and slipped past Sauter on the 70th lap as the two racers exited the fourth turn.

Sauter guided his 1973 Nova home third behind Reffner and Somers. Rounding out the top five were Watson and Shear, who made an outstanding comeback following the spin.

Following the race, Reffner noted, "It would have been a close race between Joe (Shear) and I if he hadn't spun out."

All was not lost for Somers as he was presented with the "Red, White and Blue" state championship trophy for earning the most points in WIR's three-race series. He joins Trickle and Watson on the "Red, White and Blue" state champions list.

The race was designated the "Rawhide Mustang 100" as a portion of each ticket sold was donated by the raceway to the Rawhide Boys Ranch at New London.

Neil Callahan of Merrill emerged the winner in the 20-lap semi-feature. He nipped Conrad Morgan of Dousman and Bill Retallick at the finish line in the closest finish of the afternoon.

As the three racers crossed the finish line, Morgan and Retallick collided sending both racers into the first turn wall after they had crossed the finish line.

The 12-Lap consolation was won by Freedom high school teacher Bob Abitz. He drove his 1973 Camaro to victory in a race which saw two earlier leaders drop out.

John Bovee of Wisconsin Rapids led the race for eight laps before his racer was sent to the pit area with mechanical problems. On the 10th lap leader Dick Wagner of Waukesha blew an engine heading into the third turn and eliminated himself and second place John Speer of Janesville. Speer's 1973 Nova spun wildly in Wagner's dropped oil nailing the wall with the rear of his racer.

Ten-lap heat races were won by Wagner, Morgan, Ed Hume of Madison and Somers. Besting the 60 car field in time trials was Caledonia's John Reimer with a 21.469 lap around the ½ mile paved oval.

The next event at the track will be the "North American Short Track Championship," on Sept. 7-8, promoted by Tri-R Promotions of Blue Island, Ill.

position as one of the three best players of the current era along with Jack Nicklaus and Gary Player.

He gave one of his most impressive and gutty performances in winning the 1974 PGA crown in a head-to-head duel with Nicklaus, who had to be content with the second purse of $25,700 after finishing one stroke back.

Trevino has become a personal nemesis of the great Nicklaus, beating Big Jack in a playoff for the U.S. Open crown in 1971 and also beating him out for the British Open titles in 1971 and 1972.

Nicklaus paid him the supreme tribute after Sunday's futile chase over the 7,050-yard, par-70 Tanglewood course.

"This man is fantastic," Nicklaus said. "He hardly made a mistake out there. He hit almost every fairway and every green. I hate to lose but when a guy plays as well as Lee did, there is nothing one can do."

Trevino fired a final 69—a score matched by Nicklaus—for a 72-hole score of 276, four-under-par. Nicklaus finished at 277, with the closest other pursuers a quartet two shots farther back at 279. They were the fantastic, 62-year-old Sam Snead, 69; Dave Hill, 69; Hubert Green, 70, and Bobby Cole of South Africa, 71.

Player, winner of the Masters and British Opens this year, never got untracked. Playing well but failing to ignite one of his birdie charges—such as that marked by his second round 64—he shot 70 for an even-par 280 and seventh place.

Al Geiberger had the day's best round at 66 and was along in eighth place, followed by John Mahaffey, 67, and Don Bies, 70—tied at 282. John Schlee, who led through the first two rounds, fell back with a 75-285.

The final round Sunday evolved into a three-way battle among Trevino, Nicklaus and Cole, with Trevino never once losing the lead although young Cole, 26, pulled even five times.

Cole, a copper-haired replica of Player, holed a full wedge from the rough for an eagle on the first hole to pull level with Trevino.

With only five pars and a crazy-quilt collection of birdies and bogeys, the South African kept heat on Trevino until the 17th hole where he hooked his drive into some trees and took two strokes to get to the fairway.

He took a double bogey six— eliminating himself—and just behind him, Trevino and Nicklaus prepared for the exciting climax, accentuated when Trevino three-putted the 17th green.

Trevino was on the green, 30 feet from the cup. He hit a tentative stroke, leaving the ball three feet short. Then he missed the three-footer by a couple of inches, drawing groans from his supporters.

"My mind said hit it hard," Trevino said of his original putt, "but my hands wouldn't move."

The sudden lapse cut his edge over Nicklaus to one shot and tension mounted among the gallery of some 19,000 as the two headed toward the 440-yard, uphill closing hole.

Nicklaus pulled out a threewood and split the fairway. Trevino used a driver and powered his shot some 10 yards ahead of Nicklaus, also in the fairway. Nicklaus slashed his approach shot to the green, 20 feet from the cup. Trevino was two feet inside of him.

When Nicklaus' putt skimmed past the cup, the die was cast. Trevino had no intention of three-putting this one.

"I said I was going for broke, and I did," Trevino said afterward. "I missed only one fairway, and that by a couple of inches. I missed three greens. But I went for the flag on every hole. If I had been putting better, I might have had a more comfortable margin."

Nicklaus never faltered. He sank long putts to save par at the ninth and 10th and made a good birdie at the 13th after three-putting the 12th.

But Trevino refused to give him an opening. On the 230yard, par-three 16th, Nicklaus hit a great shot 12 feet from the hole. Trevino came to the tee and laced one inside him by at least four feet.

Trevino said his PGA victory had influenced him to return to the Masters, a tournament he twice has boycotted.

"Now that I've won the PGA, I want to try the Masters," he said. "Jack says I am wrong when I say my game isn't suited for it."

"Don't do it," said Nicklaus. "Stay out."

Gordon Johncock wins state fair 200-mile race

MILWAUKEE (AP) — A.J. Foyt got caught in traffic Sunday, and the delay was enough to give Gordon Johncock a victory in record time in the Tony Bettenhausen 200-mile championship car auto race.

Johncock drove his red Eagle-Offenhauser at a track record speed of 118.752 miles per hour for his first championship car victory since November, 1973, when he captured the Phoenix 150.

The track record on the onemile oval was 114.304 m.p.h., set in 1970 by Al Unser. Wally Dallenbach set a lap record Sunday of 131.820 m.p.h.

"I turned the boost up right to the end," Foyt said, "but I got hung up in traffic. If I could have caught up with him it would have been one hell of a finish."

"It's lucky that traffic gave Foyt some problems," Johncock admitted.

Johncock, the 1973 Indy 500 winner, took the lead for good when he beat Bobby Unser to the first turn on the 146th lap. He built a nine-second lead and held it for 12 laps before Foyt, who sat on the pole in his Coyote-Foyt, began a charge.

"What worried me was that I didn't have anything left the last 15 laps," Johncock said. "It was spitting and sputtering, and the engine was missing. I think it was getting low on fuel."

Foyt cut Johncock's edge to three seconds by the 173rd lap, then pulled within 2½ seconds of the lead on the 176th lap when Johncock was slowed by traffic. Six laps later it was Foyt who was in traffic, and Johncock pulled out to a fivesecond lead that held up.

Foyt finished second, Dallenbach third, Bobby Unser was fourth and Johnny Rutherford, Indianapolis 500 champion, was fifth.

Johncock collected $12,829 for the championship from a purse of $56,225. A crowd of 20,480 spectators watched the race, the first of three during State Fair week.

Sutton's bat paces Dodgers

By KEN RAPPOPORT
AP Sports Writer

Don Sutton has notched his 15th. His 15th hit, not victory.

The Los Angeles Dodger right-hander has been having better luck hitting than pitching this season—and helped himself Sunday with two singles in a 3-1 victory over the St. Louis Cardinals.

"I'm not Dizzy Dean or Claude Osteen with my hitting," Sutton conceded, "but I believe that I can help myself win ballgames if I can do something else besides bunt. Any time you have nine guys in the lineup that can contribute, you should win."

Sutton hasn't been winning, though, with any consistency. He suffered through a six-game losing streak earlier this year and Sunday's victory, a five-hitter, was only his 10th against eight losses. Last year, he had an 18-10 record and the year before, 19-9.

His earned run average is an extravagant 3.68, above his lifetime mark of 3.01.

He started a two-run rally with a third-inning single and capped the Dodgers' scoring with a base hit an inning later.

In the other National League games, the Cincinnati Reds routed the New York Mets 10-4; the Pittsburgh Pirates stopped the San Diego Padres 8-1; the Montreal Expos beat the Houston Astros 5-2; the Atlanta Braves turned back the Philadelphia Phillies 6-5 and the San Francisco Giants took a doubleheader from the Chicago Cubs, 5-3 and 6-4. Reds 10, Mets 4

Johnny Bench drove in five runs with two doubles and his 24th home run of the season and George Foster drove in four runs, leading Cincinnati over New York.

Pirates 8, Padres 1

Dock Ellis posted his fifth consecutive victory, Willie Stargell smashed a three-run homer and Manny Sanguillen drove in two runs in Pittsburgh's victory over San Diego.

Ellis, 8-8, scattered eight hits and allowed the lone Padre run in the fourth inning. Expos 5, Astros 2

Jim Northrup's two-run homer and Jose Morales' tworun double carried Montreal over Houston. Braves 6, Phillies 5

Dave Johnson's two-run single in the eighth inning lifted Atlanta over Philadelphia.

Giants 5-6, Cubs 3-4

Gary Matthews' home run on Rick Reuschel's first pitch of the seventh inning carried San Francisco past Chicago in the first game of their doubleheader. Garry Maddox led off the ninth with his second home run of the game and Tito Fuentes later followed with a two-run single to lead San Francisco to victory in the second game.

Petty wins 'Talladega'

BY BLOYS BRITT
AP Auto Racing Writer

Richard Petty is slowly but surely putting all of the stock car racing records out of reach of anyone, even those drivers who follow him to the big tracks of the South.

The 36-year-old "big fellow" from the red clay hills of North Carolina won for the first time Sunday at one of only two major ovals that had ever denied him victory: Alabama International Speedway in the Talladega 500.

Only five years ago, when the 2.66 mile tri-oval opened, Petty led a group of drivers who boycotted the inaugural race because of the speeds they attained in the 35-degree banking.

"We were running 200 mile laps around here then," he said, "and the tire companies hadn't come up with rubber that would stand up under the punishment. I still think we were right, because we got better tires for the next race."

Petty, already past the $1.7 million mark in career prize money, beat old foe David Pearson by half a car length in Sunday's sixth Talladega 500. It was one of the most breathtaking finishes in the history of stock car racing.

It was his 162nd career triumph, and it placed him so far ahead of other challengers in the Grand National championship points battle that he almost can count on winning his fifth driving title.

And Britisher Jackie Oliver practically locked up the CanAm road racing championship by winning his fourth event in the series at Mid-Ohio near Lexington Sunday.

Oliver, driving a Shadow, averaged 102.085 miles an hour in beating Britain's Brian Redman, who was tooling Roger Penske's 1973 Porsche fo the first time.

There are only two races left in the Can-Am series and Oliver would have to wash completely out of them to lose tht title.

In other action, retiring Peace Corps director Nick Craw won a 100 mile race for small sedans at Talladega. He averaged 95.110 m.p.h. in a BMW to beat Dennis Shaw of Raleigh, N.C., in a Gremlin.

Petty pocketed $21,365 and raised his eason's total to $201,120. Pearson was paid $12,590 and now stands at $144,250.

The race was slowed by six caution flags, but Petty still managed an average speed of $148.637 m.p.h. for the 500 miles.

Marion Legion gains tie for league title

MARION — Marion's Legion baseball team gained a tie for the Central Wisconsin League title with Iola Saturday by downing Clintonville, 9-2, in a makeup game.

Clintonville earlier defeated Iola to force the tie.

Marion ends the season with a 12-6 overall record and 8-4 league mark.

Brian Thiel was the winning pitcher allowing seven hits and striking out 13. Dan Moericke had three of Marion's 12 hits, while Tim Dieck had two and John Reminger doubled.

Tom Hoffman wins Nurmi Marathon

HURLEY, Wis. (AP) — Tom Hoffman, former track star from the University of Wisconsin-Whitewater, won the annual Paavo Nurmi Marathon Saturday.

Hoffman, representing the University of Chicago Track Club, covered the distance of 26 miles and 385 yards in a nearrecord 2 hours, 23 minutes and 50.8 seconds.

Chilton High athletic ticket prices not to rise

CHILTON — Ticket prices for this year's Chilton High School athletic events will be the same as last year Adult and student ticket prices are set uniformly throughout the Packerland Conference by the member schools

The school board has recognized that families with several children would sometimes find it difficult to pay 50 cents per contest for each child, so the district will continue a student season's ticket system

Elementary school children may purchase season tickets from the high school office beginning today A season ticket for all home varsity football games is $1, for all home basketball games, $1 50 and for all home wrestling meets, $1 50 A season ticket for all three sports is $4

There will be 19 home athletic contests An all sports season ticket will save the buyer $4 50 over per game cost

As established by the conference, high school students will be charged 50 cents per ticket However, student activity and athletic ecards will again be available for $4 The activity-athletic card permits holders admission to all 19 home sports contests and entitles students to discounts on dance admissions

All high school students who are not participating directly in the game or meet involved must buy an admission ticket if they do not present their activity-athletic card Cheerleaders, pom pom girls and band members, for example, will be admitted free to any game or contest at which they actually play a part Otherwise, they must also purchase tickets or present their activity athletic card

To date, season tickets for adults are not being offered because response to such sales has been extremely limited in the past If there is a significant public demand, however, it is possible that season basketball and wrestling adult tickets will be offered. The single adult admission will continue to be $1

Waupaca traffic death toll ahead of last year

WAUPACA — Despite the national trend for a reduction in traffic deaths this year, Capt John4 Penney, county traffic department, told the law enforcement committee last week that county traffic deaths exceed those of last year.

He reported that there were were eight deaths during the first seven months of this year, compared with only three the same period last year Three of this year's eight deaths occured in July, he reported

"The number of traffic accidentsare down for the year, with 379 reported through July," Penney said "In 1973 we a had 422 during this period "

During July, 63 accidents were filed with the department, involving 83 vehicles and resulting in 36 cases of personal injury.

County patrolmen made 95 traffic arrests, issued 125 warning tickets and made 17 blood runs The patrol transported 18 persons A total of 102 motorists were assisted The eight-man squad responded to 402 radio and 31 telephone calls

Penney told the committee that traffic surveillance on county roads has been light during the past several weeks because patrols have been handling heavy traffic at the many civic events in the county. He said such surveillance would probably continue light through Labor Day

County patrolmen are hired during their off time for extra patrol on Friday, Saturday and Sunday nights, by the towns of Dayton and Farmington for patrols around the Chain O' Lakes area Supv Arthur Sturm said the two towns would have to consider hiring their own patrolmen and provide their own equipment to handle the extra traffic during the busy summer season next year This led to a lengthy discussion among the committee members and general agreement that the towns in the county that want more law enforcement should raise money for additional men and not look to the county to provide men and funds It was pointed out that the county's municipalities do raise their own tax for needed municipal law enforcement Supv Geary Wilson said he understood that towns which raise one mill for law enforcement could receive a matching amount from the state

Penney told the committee that one patrolman should be hired by the county to cover for time off and vacations Regular days off are now scheduled and officers are now getting their days on a rotating basis, which gives each man a weekend off every 12th week.

Vandalism continued to be the primary complaint to the sheriff's department during July There were 28 cases reported and nine of them were cleared

The sheriff's department located all of the 10 persons reported missing, and two of eight disorderly conduct cases were processed through the courts Two drug cases were reported and both were cleared

The nature of other complaints investigated were assault, unattended death, improper use of weapons, dog bites, family and neighborhood difficulties, auto theft, trespassing, littering, morals offenses and fraud

High school officials alter parking rules

CHILTON — New parking regulations have been announced by high school authorities

With the construction of the new industrial arts building and the renovation of the student parking lot, parking problems in an around the high school experienced during the past few years are expected to disappear this year. To insure more orderly and effective traffic control, parking lines and directional arrows have been painted on the surface of the lots

Cars must be properly tagged to use the school parking lots Stickers are now available in the high school office free of charge These stickers must be attached on the inside of each car prominently so they can be examined through the windshield from outside.

Hopefully, there will be adequate space for most staff and student vehicle on the parking areas However, students who drive cars only infrequently are asked to be considerate of others who must drive daily and park on Brooklyn or park streets

When parking stickers are picked up at the office, drivers will be requested to record the license number of their vehicles

Crowds flock to fair attractions

MILWAUKEE — New attractions, old attractions and traditional farm judging contest brought 85,509 persons to the State Fair Sunday forcing fair officials to temporarily close the parking lots.

The total 1974 attendence is now 207,760, compared with 219,378 at the same time last year.

Some of the new attractions at the fair are proving to be real crowd pleasers. But traditional freak shows in the midway aren't as successful this year.

"It's hard to find good freaks any more," a spokesman for Royal American Shows, which operates the midway, said Sunday.

The sideshow "presents strange people entertaining in person," its posters say. But these days, most of its acts are brought in from underdeveloped foreign nations where medical science is not as advanced as in the United States.

If fairgoers weren't at the sideshows Sunday, they probably stopped in at one or both of the new attractions that continued to be among the most popular spots at the fair.

Spectators flocked to the milking parlor, where Wisconsin's finest dairy cattle are milked with modern equipment.

And despite twice as many seats around the veterinary surgery area in the agriculture building, there still weren't enough places to accommodate everyone who wanted to see minor surgery performed on small animals.

Heavy but brief thunderstorms struck the fairgrounds Sunday afternoon, sending crowds scurrying for cover.

The rains delayed one of the day's major attractions, the championship auto race at the track, for two hours. Gordon Johncock won the 200-mile Tony Bettenhausen event at a record speed before more than 20,000 persons.

In livestock barns, steers were being weighed in preparation for today's cattle competition and the governor's blue ribbon beef auction scheduled tonight.

Results of livestock judging Sunday were: William DeBruin of Monroe won the showmanship judging with his Brown Swiss dairy cow, and James Kambolz of Juda, who show Ayrshires, was reserve champion showman.

Daniel Basse of Muskego had senior and grand champion Guernsey female, while Waukesha County had the best county Guernsey herd.

Norman Magnussen of Lake Mills took the grand champion female award in Brown Swiss competition, while Jefferson had the best county herd. Louise Boettcher of North Freedom was the top senior Brown Swiss showman.

Other grand champions were:

Gordon Barlass, Janesville, Jersey female; Stanley Mastey, Nichols, Ayrshire female; Peggy Kuske, Osceola, milking Shorthorn female; Phillip Raisbeck, Lancaster, Shorthorn steer, and Scott Napp, Fennimore, Hereford steer.

Also Bob May, Mineral Point, crossbreds; Kurt Breitenbach, McFarland, all-other breeds steer.

Grand champions in the sheep barn were: Tom Johnson of Delavan, ram and ewe Oxford; Sharon Mullikin, Janesville, Hampshire ram; Bill Fish, Cedarburg, Hampshire ewe; Gail Finder, Stoughton, Shropshire ram, and Cindy Carlson, Janesville, Shropshire ewe.

Bob Johnson of Delavan had the champion Corridale ram and Janice Lee of Clinton the ewe.

In the swine competition, Tom Hieb, Black River Falls, had the champion Duroc boar, and Patti Frey, Columbus, the champion gilt. Arthur Nuttleman, West Salem, showed the champion spotted boar and Joe Dooley, Beloit, the gilt.

The champion Poland China boar was displayed by David Langrehr, Clinton, and the gilt by Brian Nuttleman, Bangor.

HAYTON — A Calumet chapter of the Wisconsin Old Cemetery Society was formed here recently with the object of restoring some of the old cemeteries in the area.

Mrs. LaJune Schilling, Chilton, was elected president and Mrs. Irvin Kesler, route 2, Hilbert, secretary-treasurer. Sixteen persons have joined the group which will meet at 9:30 a.m. Sept. 21 to restore a cemetery near Fairy Springs. Susan Schmahl, Sheboygan, a regional director for the state group explained that the Calumet chapter is only the second formed in the state. The other is in Waupaca County. There are about 560 members in the state and only Wisconsin, Maine, and Vermont have such organizations.

The Calumet group is investigating the possibility of erecting a marker on the grave of William Reed, a Mexican War veteran buried in the Dick family plot at Brothertown.

According to reports there are about 60 cemeteries in Calumet County, but only 36 are on record.

The power of the closing hymn, "How Great Thou Art," was heard in the response of one of Manawa's citizens, Stewart Craig, who said, "we should do this several times a year instead of waiting for a hundred years to pass."

The Little Wolf High School Band, under the baton of Douglas Erickson, provided the music for the evening, which celebrated God's continuing creations.

There are now four registered nurses and 24 nurses aides on the staff and more are urgently needed, according to the trustees.

Boerst reports that the majority of the 127 patients at Lakeview Manor were former patients of Waupaca County Hospital. Since the first of the year there have been a few patients sent there for care from the Unified Health Services.

Lakeview Manor is a county operated facility. The Unified Board of Shawano and Waupaca Counties through the Unified Health Services can and does refer clients to Lakeview Manor and Maple Hills Residential Care just as it does to other nursing care facilities in the two counties.

Persons that choose Lakeview for care apply for admission there just as they would at a privately owned and operated home.

Ford to issue call for national unity

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford goes before Congress tonight to call for national unity after the splintering era of Watergate while pledging his administration to fresh efforts to combat inflation.

Pausing briefly in his broad search for a vice president, Ford conferred with his advisers and labored over the speech as he began his third whole day in office.

His address before a joint session of the House and Senate, scheduled for 8 p.m. CDT, is to be broadcast nationally.

Aides said the new chief executive would promise "full, fresh efforts" to stabilize the economy. In the words of one spokesman, Ford sees inflation as "Public Enemy No. 1."

Arriving from his suburban home at 6:25 CDT, Ford beat many of his White House aides to work. He went directly to his Oval Office, where in the next three hours he held meetings with transition adviser Donald Rumsfeld, holdover White House staff chief Alexander M. Haig, Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger and Press Secretary Jerald F. terHorst.

Aides indicated Ford would not set out a specific anti-inflation program in tonight's address, though detailed proposals will follow soon.

Following the morning meetings with aides, Ford got down to his shirtsleeves to devote full attention to the address. It also was expected to stress the need for national conciliation and would outline the "spirit and the tone of his administration," aides said.

They said Ford won't disclose the name of his choice for vice president in the address. The search for his successor won't be complete until late in the week, one aide said.

With a whirlwind series of 11 White House meetings on Sunday, Ford accelerated his consultations with congressional and political friends, who said women and Democrats are among those being considered for the No. 2 post.

After the meetings, Ford told a newsman "I'm not ruling out anything or anybody." Other sources said it was highly unlikely that he would stray from a list of about a dozen GOP leaders in making his selection.

Republican national chairman George Bush emerged from Sunday's meetings with the backing of an influential conservative, Sen. Barry Goldwater, R-Ariz.

"He's Mr. Clean and that's what the country wants," Goldwater said of Bush, a former Texas congressman and U.S. ambassador to the United Nations.

Goldwater, one of the 11 friends and advisers Ford met with in the separate meetings, also ranks high on the list of possibilities. He said he wasn't seeking the job but "sure, I'd accept it."

Bush's name also was mentioned by House GOP Whip Leslie C. Arends of Illinois after his meeting with Ford. And it was among three listed by Senate Republican Leader Hugh Scott.

But Scott said his first choice still is former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller. He contended that the reported opposition to Rockefeller among party conservatives is "grossly exaggerated."

In Chicago, Rockefeller said whether he would accept the vice presidency if it is offered to him is an "iffy question." He refused to comment on his chances for selection, telling reporters, "The President has to make his own decision without any intervention or pressures of any kind."

Melvin R. Laird, former congressman and defense secretary, also met with Ford but wasn't available for comment afterward.

House GOP Leader John J. Rhodes of Arizona estimated that Ford has a tentative list of 10 or so names he is considering, and Rep. Barber B. Conable Jr. of New York said he thought there were about 15.

One indication of the direction of the new administration was furnished by Interior Secretary Rogers C. B. Morton. He said Ford will put new emphasis on some Nixon administration policies in energy resources and environment, but not alter their basic intent.

Before moving through the meetings with party and political advisers, Ford conferred for a half-hour with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger. A spokesman said Kissinger brought the President up to date on the Cyprus situation.

Meanwhile, the Soviet Union pledged to continue its policy of detente and to seek with Ford a further improvement of SovietAmerican relations.

And in Cairo, the official Middle East News Agency reported that Ford's new administration has renewed the invitation to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to visit the United States before the end of the year. The invitation was extended by Nixon during his recent Middle East tour.

The President began his public day by worshipping at the Episcopal church near his suburban home.

Kneeling in a back row pew with his wife Betty and 17-year-old daughter Susan, Ford heard a special prayer for

Ford might help party

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Ford will have two early chances to show whether he takes the task of building a strengthened national Republican party more seriously than his two GOP predecessors.

The first will come when he picks a vice president, the second in his approach to November's midterm elections.

For all of their own personal success at the polls, neither Dwight D. Eisenhower nor Richard M. Nixon paid much attention to restoring the national Republican dominance that prevailed before Franklin D. Roosevelt's election to the presidency in 1932.

Eisenhower, the war hero turned statesman, had little interest. Nixon, a party man all his life, became more and more interested in his own political fortunes exclusively.

One of the legacies of the 1972 campaign, besides the scandal that ultimately drove him from office, was the bitterness in the GOP over the President's failure to help bring other Republicans in on his coattails.

Sen. Robert Dole of Kansas, the 1972 GOP chairman, has said he felt like an outsider at Nixon's victory celebration. GOP lawmakers always felt Nixon could have saved several senators who suffered narrow defeats.

But Ford demonstrated in his long congressional tenure and his brief spell as vice president a devotion to fellow Republicans that could spell brighter GOP days ahead.

His major task, in recent months, has been to help Republican candidates, part of a broader effort to give leadership to the party at a time the national administration was floundering.

Some efforts this fall in behalf of Republicans seem inevitable, and an extended Ford honeymoon could be a big boost to GOP candidates.

Before that, however, Ford must pick his No. 2 man, and the choice will tell much about his views on the party.

In the past, Ford has talked of the need to broaden the GOP base, a view that led him to help liberal Republicans as well as conservatives and to suggest in 1968 that Nixon choose a liberal running mate.

Such a view now would appear to dictate the choice of a party moderate, either an established figure such as Nelson A. Rockefeller or a younger Republican such as Gov. Daniel J. Evans of Washington, Sen. Mark O. Hatfield of Oregon or Sen. Edward W. Brooke of Massachusetts.

Many GOP liberals fear a great chance would be wasted if Ford picked a fellow conservative, such as Sen. Barry Goldwater or Gov. Ronald Reagan, especially since the choice must be approved by the Democratic-controlled Congress, rather than a conservatively based GOP National Convention.

Syrian military gets new leader

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Syrian President Hafez Assad shuffled his country's military command today, bringing in as chief of staff the head of the Syrian team that negotiated last spring's Golan Heights disengagement agreement with Secretary of State Henry A. Kissinger.

Maj. Gen. Hikmat Shehabi, in his mid 40s, headed Syria's military intelligence service before Assad promoted him from brigadier and gave him the army's top post. He replaced Maj. Gen. Youssef Shakkour, chief of staff during last October's Middle East war.

Shakkour was made a deputy defense minister, as was Maj. Gen. Naji Jamil, commander of the Syrian Air Force. The third deputy to Defense Minister Mustafa Tlas is Maj. Gen. Awad Bagh of artillery.

The changes, made by presidential decree, were the first in Syria's armed forces heirarchy since the October war.

They came as Syria's government-controlled press charged that Israel was preparing to launch a fifth war with the Arabs, a charge Israel has made repeatedly against Syria.

Shehabi is a long-time confidant of Assad. He led a Syrian military team to Washington last spring to negotiate with Kissinger Syria's terms for a separation of forces with Israel on the high ground separating the countries.

The eventual signing of the disengagement agreement helped open the way for Richard M. Nixon to become the first American President to visit Syria. Nixon and Assad announced during the visit the renewal of diplomatic relations between Washington and Damascus, severed during the 1967 Middle East war.

The radio broadcasts announcing the shakeup gave no official reason for it.

In addition to the Damascus charges of an impending Israeli attack on Syria, Lebanese newspapers claimed in Beirut that the Soviet Union has warned Palestinian guerrillas that Israel "is about to deal a major military blow on one or more Arab fronts."

The press reports charged that Israel was preparing for a two-pronged offensive across its frontiers with Syria and Lebanon. The objective was said to be "the destruction of Syria's military power and the elimination of the Palestinian guerrilla presence in Lebanon."

The independent An Nahar said the Soviet ambassador to Lebanon, Servar Azimov, conveyed the warning on Sunday to guerrilla leader Yasir Arafat.

Despite the Arab talk of war, Israeli Foreign Minister Yigal Allon said on Sunday he expects Middle East peace talks to resume in Geneva this year.

Allon met with Kissinger last week in Washington as part of a new round of discussions among the American secretary of state and Israeli and Arab officials. Allon said last week's discussions brought no decisions on the next step in Israeli-Arab negotiations.

The Israeli foreign minister reported on the talks Sunday to Premier Yitzhak Rabin's cabinet.

At the same cabinet meeting, Defense Minister Shimon Peres said the government plans the most extensive practice mobilization of army reservists in a decade. Peres did not reveal when the callup will be but said foreign governments will be informed beforehand.

In Cairo, the official Middle East News Agency reported Sunday that President Ford had renewed an invitation to Egyptian President Anwar Sadat to visit the United States. The invitation was first issued in the spring by former President Nixon.

Ford cabled Sadat that his administration will continue the effort for a durable Middle East peace "with the same force that characterized U.S. diplomatic efforts during the past nine months," the news agency said.

Cyprus compromise offered

BY THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Britain proposed a compromise Cyprus peace plan at the Geneva talks today in an effort to overcome sharp differences between Turkey and Greece over the political future of the Mediterranean island.

The British plan apparently called for setting up a number of separate ethnic communities, but official Greek sources said Greek Foreign Minister George Mavros wants a "more subtle and loose form" of government on Cyprus than the British plan offers.

In Ankara, Turkey's Prime Minister Bulent Ecevit was reportedly considering the British plan. Turkey has insisted on a plan to divide the island into two distinct Turkish and Greek ethnic communities in a federated Cyprus.

A Turkish source at Geneva said: "Turkey can afford to wait. We have 40,000 troops on the island."

There were no new reports of fighting on Cyprus.

Greek Cypriot troops pulled out of four Turkish villages in eastern Cyprus Sunday night and United Nations troops moved in to keep the peace.

The Cyprus government freed 13 Turkish prisoners of war in exchange for five Greek Cypriots released by the Turks on Friday.

The sound of artillery fire Sunday night broke three days of quiet on the Mediterranean island. The shooting appeared to come from the Kyrenia Mountains about 10 miles north of Nicosia, where the invading Turkish army and Greek Cypriots fought until late Thursday.

Neither of the warring sides nor the U.N. peace force had immediate comment on Sunday's shooting.

The four armies on Cyprus — Greek Cypriot, Turkish, British and the U.N. peacekeeping force — reinforced their defenses on Sunday. Britain flew in 600 Gurkha mercenaries from Nepal and placed on alert in London 400 Royal Marine commandos.

In Geneva, the peace talks among the foreign ministers of Britain, Turkey and Greece came near collapse over Turkish demands to divide Cyprus among its Greek and Turkish populations. The three countries guarantee Cypriot independence under a 1960 treaty.

Kissinger reportedly telephoned Turkish Premier Bulent Ecevit in Ankara and urged him to keep the talks alive. The secretary of state then met with President Ford for half an hour to bring him up to date on Cyprus.

The peace talks finally convened Sunday — delayed nine hours by urgent consultations among political and military leaders in Ankara and Athens — but little progress was reported.

Turkey, represented by Foreign Minister Turan Gunes, is demanding division of Cyprus into two federated states, Greek and Turkish. Gunes has claimed one third of Cyprus for the island's 18 per cent Turkish minority. The plan would involve moving around large numbers of families because Turkish communities currently are scattered through the island.

Poll indicates approval for resignation

PRINCETON, N.J. (AP) — More than three-quarters of Americans surveyed in a Gallup poll believe Richard M. Nixon "did the best thing" by resigning the presidency.

But more than half of those polled oppose an investigation of possible criminal charges against him.

In a telephone survey conducted by the polling organization last Thursday night and Friday after Nixon's resignation speech, 79 per cent of those questioned said he "should have resigned." Thirteen per cent said he "should have stayed" and 8 per cent gave no opinion.

Fifty-five per cent of the 550 persons questioned opposed a criminal investigation of Nixon. Thirty-seven per cent favored such an investigation, and 8 per cent offered no opinion.

On the question of whether the former president's "actions regarding Watergate were serious enough to warrant his resignation," 65 per cent said yes, 22 per cent said they were "not serious enough" and 13 per cent gave no opinion.

Asked to choose from a list of six possible vice presidential nominees suggested in the survey, 23 per cent chose Arizona Sen. Barry Goldwater and 18 per cent chose former New York Gov. Nelson A. Rockefeller.

Gov. Ronald Reagan of California was next at 12 per cent. Tennessee Sen. Howard H. Baker and former U.S. attorney general Elliot L. Richardson received 11 per cent each. George Bush, chairman of the Republican National Committee, received 1 per cent and the remaining 24 per cent gave no preference.

Tot puffs marijuana

MIAMI (AP) — Something new in potty training?

A woman arrested here on drug-smuggling charges told federal agents she frequently let her 20-month-old daughter Jamaica Naomi Russo puff on marijuana cigarettes.

"It makes her giggle," Mary K. Russo, 23, of Eagle Creek, Ore., was quoted as saying.

Mrs. Russo and two men were arrested here Saturday by agents of the federal Drug Enforcement Administration after the agents said they found an estimated $500,000 worth of cocaine strapped under her clothes. The trio had arrived on a flight from Bogota, Colombia.

The child was placed in custody of the Florida Division of Family Services, agents said.

Nixon aloof from staff, Ehrlichman says

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP) — As President, Richard M. Nixon purposely remained aloof from dozens of middle and lower level White House staffers and only rarely socialized with his top aides, says John D. Ehrlichman.

Only two or three times in the four and one-third years that Ehrlichman was a top aide to Nixon did the Nixons and the Ehrlichmans get together socially, Ehrlichman says.

Ehrlichman added in an interview Sunday that Nixon's relationship with his then-chief of staff H.R. Haldeman was about the same: numerous contacts during the working day but only rare private social get-togethers.

"That was not because of a character flaw necessarily, but because of his sense of what the relationship ought to be between the President and his staff," he said.

Ehrlichman also said that Nixon, who last Friday became the first president in U.S. history to resign, purposely had little contact with middle and lower level White House staffers.

"We talked about the desirability of his just going out and going in and out of offices and saying hello to secretaries and dropping in on staff members," but Nixon rejected the idea, Ehrlichman said.

"I thought the decision was a mistake."

Ehrlichman said if Nixon had spent time talking with those employes "I think it would have enhanced staff performance." But he said he had no idea whether such a policy from the outset of the Nixon administration would have somehow prevented the entire Watergate affair.

Ehrlichman resigned his White House post as chief domestic affairs adviser to Nixon on April 30, 1973, amidst the then burgeoning scandal.

He said on Sunday that Nixon "surely must be very unhappy" now. "He's had a very personal defeat in Washington in a political sense and he's an individual who doesn't like to lose.

"It's been my experience that losing does not put him out of business, so to speak, doesn't down him for long. But certainly I'm sure he is what you would call a bad loser."

Ehrlichman said he thinks Nixon, now at home at his San Clemente, Calif., estate, will make a personal comeback and perhaps do some writing and eventually become a senior statesman of some sort.

Ehrlichman, who interrupted work in his garden for the interview, said he did not think Congress should continue with impeachment proceedings nor should court action be brought against the former president.

Doctor seeks different life in Rice Lake

RICE LAKE, Wis (AP) — Rural Wisconsin is a long way away from Nassau County, N Y and a mercy killing trial that thrust Dr Vincent A Montemarano into the national spotlight early this year

But Rice Lake in Barron County is where the doctor has chosen to build his new life

There is no place in the city for the children to grow the surgeon says of his decision to leave New York 'The backyards in the city are about the size of this,' he says, gesturing at the floor of his small office

Montemarano was acquitted in February of charges he killed a terminally ill cancer patient with an injection of potassium chloride

'People were very good to us through it all he says, but adds, "It's over and I just want to forget it"

Montemarano was charged with murder and attempted murder when authorities said he injected potassium chloride into the veins of a 59-year-old cancer victim Eugene Bauer

Bauer died Dec 7, 1972, and Montemarano chief resident surgeon at the Nassau County Medical Center, signed a certificate giving cancer as the cause of death

A jury deliberated one hour before finding Montemarano innocent of a mercy killing His attorneys insisted that Bauer died of natural causes Montemarano was not called to testify

Now, the doctor practices medicine at the Indianhead Medical Center His wife and two children enjoy a home and yard

'We really like it here," he said 'It's a lot different than being in the city There's a cornfield right back of our house and the only time I ever saw corn before was in a can"

Montemarano, 34, was recently appointed Barron County coroner, a job he hopes won't take him away from his family too much

'We just do things around the house and the yard," he said in an interview with the Milwaukee Journal "We've never had a house before and it is a new experience for us"

Bedding down for strike

Correspondence, paper work to keep Nixon assistants busy for long while

SAN CLEMENTE, Calif (AP) — Massive correspondence and paper work will occupy Richard M Nixon in coming days, in addition to whatever Watergate turmoil might lie ahead

Three principal assistants are working with Nixon here at his oceanfront retreat in his transition from president to private citizen In addition, he has met with two close friends

The Presidential Transition Act provides Nixon with staff support for six months Principal tasks are to handle correspondence remaining from the end of Nixon's presidency and to arrange for movement of his voluminous presidential papers

The assistants also are handling liaison with the new White House staff of President Ford

The three top aides here with Nixon are his former press secretary, Ronald L Ziegler, former appointments secretary Stephen Bull and military aide Col Jack Brennan Several lower ranking assistants from White House days also are here along with Dr Walter Tkach, Nixon's personal physician in Washington

The staff is working at the office compound formerly called the Western White House, located on a Coast Guard facility adjacent to Nixon's 26-acre estate Operators at a telephone switchboard, greatly undermanned from previous times, now answer "San Clemente" instead of "Western White House"

Under the Former Presidents Act, Nixon is entitled after the six months transition to nearly $100,000 annually for support of an office staff. An aide said this office likely will be quartered at the former Western White House He also said there definitely will be a presidential library to house Nixon's papers and mementos, although a site has not been determined

The aide, who asked not to be named, said Nixon has been reading and working in his office, where news service tickers still operate. He said the former president will seek far greater privacy as citizen Nixon than as chief executive

On Sunday Nixon worked in his office for more than an hour and visited with friends C G "Bebe" Rebozo and Robert Abplanalp, aides said. In the afternoon the former President went on a three-hour outing, spending an hour on the beach at Camp Pendleton Marine Base, just south of his residence, then driving with Rebozo to Red Beach to join Mrs. Nixon and their daughter Tricia and son-in-law Edward Cox. The family returned home in late afternoon.

Earlier Abplanalp and Rebozo, interviewed briefly at a nearby restaurant while they lunched, said they had talked several times with Nixon during the weekend

"We are out here as friends to do what we can — that's all," said Abplanalp "He seemed fine, he is not upset"

Both men said any more substantive remarks would be inappropriate Through an investment company, the two own about three-fourths of the acreage in the Nixon compound

Three gunmen terrorize, rob passengers on bus

CAMARILLO, Calif (AP) — Authorities said today that three armed men boarded a Greyhound bus and raped a pregnant teen-age girl, pistol whipped a man and robbed all 34 passengers before making a getaway

A Ventura County sheriff's spokesman said the girl, who was not identified, was six months pregnant. The spokesman said she was raped in the restroom aboard the bus, but was otherwise unharmed and continued the trip

The trio boarded the San Francisco-bound bus at North Hollywood and pulled out handguns and a sawed-off rifle about 30 minutes later As one of the robbers kept a pistol on the driver and another stood at the rear, the third walked down the aisle demanding money and valuables from the passengers, police said

Glenn B. Coons, 56, of Santa Barbara, was hit with a gun after he told the robbers he wasn't carrying any money, deputies said

"It was a nightmare," said Mats Grape, 24, a student visiting here from Sweden. "I was frightened The blacks were so full of hate and so nervous, it made me frightened"

The gunmen, all identified as Negro males in their early 20s, got about $3,000 in cash, travelers checks and jewelry, then ordered the bus driver to stop near a freeway exit where they got into a waiting car, police said

Anders Franzen, 25, also vacationing from Sweden, said that just before the robbery he heard one of the men whisper, "I want to kill some of these (passengers)"

But he said another answered "No, no killing"

"I was frightened to death," Franzen said "I was afraid to say anything and I didn't tell my friends I just waited and hoped nothing would happen"

Police said they had no leads in the case

Experimental brain pacemaker helps bring young man to more normal life

TULARE, Calif. (AP) — Mark Bevins has simple goals to talk without stuttering, to care for himself. Things most people take for granted

And with the help of a pair of experimental brain pacemakers implanted in his skull two months ago, the Tulare teenager may be a little closer to those goals today

Bevins, 18, victim since age seven of a rare unnamed nervous disorder which gradually blinded and paralyzed him, returned to the University of California Medical Center in San Francisco last week to pick up two timers designed to regulate the pacemakers automatically.

Until then, the battery-powered machines implanted in an experimental operation after Mark suffered a seizure which nearly took his life had to be turned on and off several times an hour At night, they were left off so his automobile-salesman father, Jake Bevins, could sleep

During the seizure last May, Mark's heart and respiration stopped. His parents thought the progressive ailment had finally claimed their son. But the youth revived, and on June 16 Dr. John Adams implanted the tiny pacemakers in an effort to reverse the effects of the illness

The pacemakers supply to the brain a tiny electric current, designed to block muscular rigidity and control the shaking and tremors which make it impossible for Mark to feed himself or control his movements.

The father says Mark's condition has improved in the short time since the operation "It was so gradual we didn't notice until recently how much he had really improved"

He said he could tell when "we disconnected the pacemakers . once they were off, we could really notice the change."

Although the doctors have made no such promises, Mark's parents still hope for a dramatic recovery

"I wouldn't have as much hope as I do if I hadn't seen how well it worked in the hospital," Bevins said "He held a glass of iced tea and drank it through a straw for the first time in three or four years. He talked real well."

The disease has not impaired Mark's mentality, and his father says the youth is pleased with his progress.

"When we shut off the pacemakers it showed how much good they really did, and it gave him a lot of encouragement.

"Right now he just wants to be able to talk and use his hands to take care of himself," Bevins said "But his real goal is to walk and be just like you and I again"

Ford to call for unity

the success of his presidency

"Give him the strength of spirit, body and mind needed for the tasks; the wisdom to see, listen and act for the good of all people," said the prayer written by Suffragan Bishop John A. Braden and read by the church's assistant rector, the Rev Patricia M Park

The assistant rector also asked for comfort for Nixon, who flew to his San Clemente, Calif , home on Friday

In Essex, Mass , Ford's son Michael said he would like to see Nixon speak out and "make a total confession of what was his role in Watergate." The younger Ford is a 24-year-old graduate student at the interdenominational Gordon Conwell Theological Seminary in Wenham, Mass.

After stopping at his home for a brunch of waffles with sour cream and strawberries, Ford drove on to the White House to sign the first bill of his administration

It was a measure authorizing the Coast Guard to adopt modern boiler and pressure safety standards for ships

He then signed a second bill, this one to make more flexible the penalties for violation of the Perishable Agricultural Commodities Act

Later, Ford logged 17 laps in his backyard swimming pool while cameramen recorded the daily ritual which he said keeps his tummy flat

The President, who has 200 pounds well distributed over his six-foot-plus frame, jokingly ordered the photographers to cease when he prepared to climb out of the pool. "No pictures getting out of the pool That's the worst"

Mrs. Nixon's girlhood home is firebombed

CERRITOS, Calif (AP) — A mysterious firebombing has scarred the green-shuttered home where Mrs Richard M. Nixon spent her girlhood

Police said they had neither motive nor suspects for the early Sunday firebombing, but said "an unidentified flammable liquid was poured on the south wall of the recreation hall attached to the home"

The fire, spotted by a paper boy, was extinguished by Los Angeles County firemen in about five minutes, doing only about $1,500 damage a spokesman said.

The home where Thelma "Pat" Ryan lived as a child stands in the center of a 4 4-acre historical park named for her and dedicated to children Mrs Nixon was born in Ely, Nev , in 1912, but the next year her family moved to this little house in Cerritos when her father started farming in nearby Artesia

Amnesty for draft evaders urged by president of bar association

HONOLULU (AP) — The president of the American Bar Association today proposed amnesty for draft evaders to eradicate a last symbol of "the cancer of Vietnam."

"The ruptures of Watergate and Vietnam have left festering sores in our national life," Chesterfield Smith, leader of the 185,000-member legal organization, said in remarks prepared for the opening of the group's 97th annual convention.

Smith said he is convinced the new administration of Gerald R. Ford will cleanse the wounds of Watergate.

But he said America will remain divided until it deals with "the ongoing living tragedy" of punishment and exile for those who refused to fight in Vietnam out of a sincere belief it was wrong.

"Ultimate forgiveness of governmental punishment is fully compatible with our national traditions," he said.

"It is my personal hope that the American Bar Association will support full rehabilitation of the war resister."

The ABA's legislative body, the 340-member house of delegates, will consider a resolution later this week proposing "earned immunity" for draft evaders in exchange for alternate service to the nation. But Smith said that was not strong enough.

"At worst, it is a moral abdication of the right to full repatriation of those who reacted to the draft out of conscience," he said, adding:

"I also submit that it disregards the equally serious problems of the deserters, the less-than-honorably discharged and those who were criminally punished for military or other nonviolent crimes."

In addition, Smith, 57, of Lakeland, Fla., called treatment of the Vietnam veteran "a national disgrace."

"The veteran, it seems to me, has been left almost totally alone by the government since the war ended," he said.

He called for immediate approval of legislation granting higher benefits to veterans, who he said cannot afford college educations under present benefits.

Commenting on the resignation of President Nixon, Smith said, "Now is not the time for recrimination, nor is it a time for vengeance." He urged all lawyers to join Ford and Congress "in a massive effort to right the wrongs to our nation caused by recent abuses of governmental process."

"Our immediate duty is to rally behind our candid, open and forthright new President in solving the problems of the nation," he said.

Poison dumped into Yuma water system

YUMA, Ariz. (AP) — The municipal water system for this southwest Arizona city of 32,000 was shut down from midafternoon Sunday, when the temperature was 106 degrees, until early today.

The city water was cut off after residents reported finding dead fish floating in the Yuma Main Canal.

Chemists labored through Sunday to neutralize a deadly insecticide, parathion, that had been dumped into the canal.

Water started flowing at midnight Sunday and within an hour the entire city was back on line, officials aid. Water usage, however, will be restricted through Tuesday.

None of the poisoned water reached the city treatment plant, water mains or homes, said James Clevenger, city administrator. Some was detected in city storage tanks next to the canal and had to be dumped and treated.

The identity of the person who dumped the chemical was unknown late Sunday, said Imperial County Deputy Richard Bell. Asked if the dumping was deliberate, Bell said, "Either that or someone wasn't thinking."

"Apparently somebody that had been carrying chemicals washed out a truck that had chemicals spilled on it," Yuma Police dispatcher Diane Schroeder said.

The dumping took place about two miles north of Winterhaven, on the California side of the canal, said Imperial County Sheriff's deputies. Health, U.S. Bureau of Reclamation, wildlife and law enforcement agencies were investigating.

Imperial County deputies rode along the canal, warning downstream ranchers not to water their stock from the canal. No person or animal was reported poisoned by the insecticide which can be absorbed through the skin, lungs or stomach and attacks the nerves that control the heart and respiratory system.

Miss Schroeder said the local hospital and fire department were supplied with water from neighboring towns and the Marine Corps Air Station here. Supermarket shelves with bottled water were emptied within hours, authorities said.

Nixon a suspect in tape erasure, columnist claims

WASHINGTON (AP) — Columnist Jack Anderson says Watergate prosecutors are investigating the possibility that Richard M. Nixon may have erased the famous 18½-minute segment from the tape of his White House conversation on June 20, 1972.

The conversation was with then chief of staff H.R. Haldeman.

Anderson said in an article today that sources close to the prosecutor's office describe the former President as a "key suspect" in their investigation, although they have developed no "solid evidence" that would incriminate him.

According to Haldeman's notes, the missing segment dealt with the Watergate breakin. A panel of experts has concluded the 18½-minute conversation was wiped off the tape by someone who made five stop-and-start erasures.

"The evidence strongly suggests, therefore, that the culprit was an amateur who had access to both the tapes and Miss (Rose Mary) Woods' recorder," Anderson said. "As a practical matter, this would eliminate almost everyone except Mr. Nixon, Miss Woods and White House assistant Stephen Bull," Anderson added.

Ford may trim Pentagon budget

WASHINGTON (AP) — Although a strong defense advocate, President Ford will make the Pentagon pull in its belt to save money, close associates predict.

The first belt-tightening move may come within two months.

A source familiar with Ford's thinking says the Pentagon "probably will have to eat" a pay increase of about $1.5 billion due in October for more than 2,160,000 military men and women and about one million civilian employes.

By this, the source said he meant the Pentagon will have to absorb the increased cost, perhaps by cutting the number of personnel below levels planned by the Nixon administration.

Some of those advising Ford believe the biggest spending cuts should come in manpower costs, which now account for about 55 per cent of the defense budget. Besides pay, such costs cover housing, food, clothing, medical care and other support of military personnel and their families.

A new White House push to trim military manpower further could bring the first strain between the new President and Secretary of Defense James R. Schlesinger, who has said U.S. forces already are thin.

Associates of both men say that Ford and Schlesinger agree on most major defense questions, including a cautious approach to a new strategic arms limitation agreement with Russia.

Like Schlesinger, Ford has called attention to the pace of Soviet weapons developments and said that "to prevent a serious imbalance, we must continue to modernize and improve the readiness of our combat forces."

While supporting detente as a goal, Ford has said, "we must insure that our good will is not misconstrued as lack of will."

Labor promises to support Ford

WASHINGTON (AP) — Organized labor has pledged support for the new President despite Gerald R. Ford's nearly solid antilabor voting record in Congress.

Ford, according to the AFLCIO, voted "wrong" 109 times and "right" on only nine occasions when it came to legislation favored by labor during his 25-year congressional career.

But with Ford assuming the presidency, organized labor's chief spokesman, George Meany, pledged on behalf of the 13.5 million-member AFLCIO "all possible support in meeting the grave and serious problems the nation faces."

Similar comments came from other labor leaders.

United Auto Workers President Leonard Woodcock said his union would cooperate with the new administration "in any effort to correct the enormous economic and moral difficulties the nation faces."

"You can count on our support and cooperation in your efforts to bring America back to the principles upon which it was founded and under which it has prospered," wired President Floyd E. Smith, president of the International Association of Machinists and Aerospace Workers.

Teamsters chief Frank E. Fitzsimmons, a staunch ally of former President Richard M. Nixon, said his union is "ready to unite" behind Ford.

Preside t Jerry Wurf of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employes union, referred to Ford's conservatism but said "we are willing to work with him on the very real problems facing the country."

Labor leaders generally consider Ford a conservative on most issues and although they rarely saw eye-to-eye on legislation they respect his integrity.

An AFL-CIO staff official called Ford's relationship with the labor federation on Capitol Hill "exceedingly friendly."

Both Ford and labor regard inflation as the No. 1 problem facing the country and the new President is expected to call for reduced government spending while urging business and labor to restrain wage and price increases.

The Brooke resolution

We take strong exception to the resolution introduced into the Senate by Senator Edward Brooke.

The resolution asks that it be the sense of Congress that Richard Nixon be immune from federal and state prosecution concerning his involvement in all that is Watergate. Senator Brooke further states that the resolution be withdrawn if Mr. Nixon does not make a public confession of guilt.

It is not retribution that prompts our point of view but the opinion that this country needs most desperately to return to a real system of law and order which most especially must include justice for all Americans before the law. That must include Richard Nixon.

Our entire penal system may be heavily in error. Perhaps in the long run a mere confession of guilt and sincere repentance would do more to prevent crime or at least speed rehabilitation than all the jail sentences and fines. But as Senator Wiecker has suggested, there should be a general amnesty if Richard Nixon is to be excused from further prosecution. It probably should not matter that the former President himself spoke out so strongly against amnesty for draft evaders, for instance. But what is right for one American, is right for all others in the nation's courts. That must continue to be the aim of our system of justice, however inaccurate it sometimes has been.

Spiro Agnew was permitted to plea bargain and part of the consideration for charges to be dropped against him was his resignation as vice president and the publication of Federal Bureau of Investigation reports concerning him. In Watergate related affairs, several former members of Mr. Nixon's entourage were also allowed off the hook in order to get further evidence against others. Perhaps it can be argued that what was permitted for them should not be denied Mr. Nixon. But their bargains served a purpose in that the full story of Watergate could finally reach the American people. Even the financial and emotional savings of prosecuting Mr. Agnew did not justify that decision. Nor does it in the case of Mr. Nixon.

There is also something uncomfortable about the public confession of guilt. It smacks of inquisitions and Communist style trials. Mea culpa is important for individuals in relation to other individuals or their supreme being. It is a little frightening when it involves the state.

The whole despicable story deserves telling. There are many unanswered questions. It is not enough to sweep it all under the rug and try to forget. Instead to save our system of government, still the best hope of mankind, we must eternally remember.

Ecology complaint brings men in white

Environmentalists sometimes get called econuts in this country. But it could be worse as a woman in Moscow found out.

Svetlana Shramko was a worker in Artificial Filament Plant 523 at Ryazan southeast of Moscow. She sent a written complaint to the Central Committee of the Soviet Communist Party and a copy to the United Nations. She charged that the plant had no smoke or emission-control devices and belched hydrogen sulfide and other noxious stuff into the air for a radius of six miles and that a lot of people were getting sick.

In the United States people write letters like that to newspapers, assemblymen, governors and senators 24 hours a day. But in Russia someone or other sent an ambulance to Svetlana's apartment. When she refused to go willingly for a mental examination, she was seized at the plant and carted away.

After a month in the hospital, doctors concluded that she was not mentally ill but only belligerent. Perhaps their diagnosis came because Svetlana promised she would write no more such letters. But they issued a certificate saying she had paranoid tendencies.

After all, the plant reportedly has dangerous pollutants eight times in excess of safe limits and Svetlana might feel compelled to tell somebody again.

Repeat of a Poe story

How do you lose $5.4 million? For a while it looked as if it might be easy. At least easier than finding the securities again.

A couple of weeks ago an outside audit of New York City's Controller's Office came up with the news that there was a $5.4 million "discrepancy" in the city's books. The news was alarming enough to have a task force from the offices of the District Attorney and the Investigation Commissioner assigned to full-time work on getting to the bottom of the problem.

It turned out to be quite a task indeed. The team of a dozen auditors had to probe through musty files and computer cards, filed ledgers and scraps of paper on six floors of the Municipal Building. Nervous employes, worried about their jobs and the political implications of the missing securities, apparently seldom volunteered any information.

But after two weeks suddenly the task force had a breakthrough. The securities were supposed to be missing from a vault. They were there all the time. Or at least most of them were. It's a little difficult for the layman to understand, but apparently it was all a bookkeeping error. Or mostly. A continued discrepancy of $84,000 "will be resolved shortly," according to the chief of the investigators. The books didn't completely balance out, however, and Mayor Beame himself handed over $1 which somehow was needed.

According to District Attorney Richard Kuh, "it was like Edgar Allan Poe's The Purloined Letter. If we wanted to find it, we had to look in the most obvious place." The place was an overlooked file.

However, maybe it wasn't just like Poe's story. The latter concerned a document that was intentionally stolen from the mistress of the King of France by a blackmailing minister of the government. The letter was eventually found in a desk rack in full view of everyone desperately probing for it. The minister had deposited the letter immediately beneath the nose of the whole world, by way of best preventing any portion of that world from perceiving it."

The New York episode may not have any intentional malfeasance. But it just goes to show how important the apparently irrelevant "liberal arts" can be in this pragmatic, work-a-day world.

Towns move for new incorporation laws

MADISON — Dispersion of the urban populations of the state into suburbia and over the rural countryside continues, as every recent study has shown. Additional corroboration is provided in the latest population estimates of the state Department of Administration as a part of the procedure required under the new laws governing the distribution of locally shared but state-levied taxes.

Expertly aware of such trends are the leaders of the rural government interest, notably the towns as lately represented in a reinvigorated Towns Association.

Those officers know that each year more of the towns that once served purely rural constituencies with limited demands for local services are being influenced by persons accustomed to higher standards of local government service, including especially health and other protective services. In their absence there will be pressure for annexation to the cities that now have such benefits available. Annexation is a dreaded word in the town halls, and is one of the chief reasons why the Towns Association has improved strength and leadership in recent times.

The towns lobby has been able to fight off the pressures for easier territorial acquisition by adjacent cities. Yet there is a growing conviction that what is urban should be city. Annexation pressure will continue. In the alternative, the transplanted urban residents will press for municipal incorporation to get the protective and other services he wants in addition to the delights of rural life. Under existing law, such incorporation of nonrural pockets of population — and tax valuation — is strictly regulated. Yet there are occasional incorporations approved by the state, which shear from town jursidiction property valuation.

What the towns are now demanding is a whole new concept of a municipal corporation that would permit them to qualify, without regard to their essential rural character. Thus would they obstruct the pressure for extension of city boundaries and yet meet the obvious needs of their growing nonrural constituencies.

The classical concept of "town" is a rudimentary unit that was designed for the simple wants of persons largely engaged in agriculture. The basic system has not changed significantly since the formation of the state.

But rural Wisconsin is no longer agricultural in many instances. There are at least 25 towns in the state today or more than 4,00 population. From them comes the pressure for a town as a municipal corporation, lumping farmers with suburbanites, without regard to traditional concepts and definitions. The goal is insurance. An incorporated town would be protected from the annexation designs of the neighboring city.

But most of these aspiring towns, with rich tax foundations and low service costs, lie near cities and to give them such immunity would be to choke urban expansion permanently. The League of Wisconsin Municipalities and other urban interests understand expertly.

Wisconsin by all normal definitions is now basically urban. But it is not now organized politically to reflect its urban composition. The last legislative reapportionment, as the authors strove for mathematical exactitude in representation, aided the rural interests by setting up more mixed urban-rural districts.

The Towns Association lately has shown more sophistication and skill in legislative persuasion, in part through the employment of Myron Lotto, a former state senator who has the esteem of his former colleagues. That the town incorporation drive will score is a distinct possibility, in defiance of most expert judgment on desirable organization of local governments and their expanding services.

The prospects with Ford as president

WASHINGTON — Some thoughts on the opportunities and pitfalls of transferring national power from Richard Nixon to Gerald Ford:

President Nixon's speedy resignation satisfies the first imperative. By striking his exit bargain quickly Mr. Nixon avoids the further ignominy that would make it more difficult for Republicans to hail his foreign policy achievements or for conservatives to invoke 1973-74 vitriol in debating the critical issue of media power and bias.

In this respect, Mr. Nixon's interests — securing the best possible retrospect of history — parallel the interests of the country. With U.S. diplomacy hamstrung and the economy reeling and staggering, quick delineation of the new shape of government is essential for national and international confidence. Nothing could be more obvious.

The second imperative is an active, affirmative coming-to-power by Mr. Ford. Autumn ought to be devoted to recruiting top-flight people for the new administration while showing Americans that a firm hand has taken the tiller. The closer that Mr. Ford can approach the activist image of Franklin D. Roosevelt's first "hundred days," the better. After 18 months in the doldrums, the country is looking for leadership and will respond to it.

A new vice president

The third imperative is well-night immediate selection of a new vice president so that Congress can confirm him before adjourning in October. Three of four names appear in serious Washington conversation, but the foremost is former N.Y. Governor Nelson Rockefeller. His selection would make sense from four different perspectives — personal stature, ability to lure talent into the new regime, an ideological stance in the middle of the GOP, and a lack of divisive involvement in the early impeachment controversy. Among other possibilities, former Attorney General Elliott Richardson is simply outside the GOP mainstream, and party chairman George Bush may lack credibility.

Whether these developments could restore Republican Party chances in November's elections is a matter of conjecture. One important step in this direction has already been taken: Mr. Nixon's own admission of central involvement in the Watergate cover-up has pretty well submerged the intra-party fraticide of the impeachment issue. Only the handful of Republicans who were early (and dubiously motivated) impeachment zealots, plus the handful of bitter-end Nixon defenders, are likely to incur lasting intra-party animosities. With a new President in office, the chances are that by November, the overall electorate will also not be very interested in looking back at impeachment positions.

Ford activism is questioned

But a lot depends on the activism a new Ford Administration is able to generate. If the situation is upbeat by October, with a new president, a new vice president, and an attractive, unfolding administration program, then Republicans who have been staying away from the polls in droves because of Watergate will presumably turn out in usual or conceivably greater-than-usual ratios. Besides which, many independents and some Democrats might also be persuaded to rally around Ford.

Nor I am persuaded that the new administration would have much to fear from the economic issue as AFL-CIO strategists hope. First of all, Gerald Ford is not likely to be blamed for the policy failures of Richard Nixon. Secondly, polls show that Congress receives at least as much inflation blame as the executive branch. And thirdly, Prime Minister Trudeau's recent Canadian election triumph confirms that North American double-digit inflation is not necessarily being taken out on the incumbent party.

Over the long-term, I still believe that 1975 and 1976 will be among the most bruising and brawling years in American political history. But in the short run, the rapid accession of Gerald Ford to the presidency promises the most soothing benefit to the world, the country, the two-party system and even to the tattered reputation of a president whose accomplishments deserve to be remembered with his disgrace.

Beat the heat, just think cool!

In one of those "silly season" pieces on the hot weather that make journalism the asinine business it so often is, some Sunday scribbler has suggested that a good way to beat the heat is by "thinking cool."

He advises, in a thoughtless and breezy statement, that on a torrid day one should simply envision a mountain of ice or cool water running down a mountain-top or some similar frigid scene.

Nothing could be more psychologically unsound. A frame of mind may be important in adjusting ourselves to the caprices of the weather — but surely not by thinking of its opposite.

"Thinking cool" in hot weather simply makes one more frantic to get out of the heat — just as "thinking food" will make a starving man agonize with hunger, and "thinking sex" will make a monastic renounce his vows.

In hot weather, when I turned my mind to the grisly subject, I think of even hotter weather I have suffered through. I think, for instance, of an afternoon driving through Death Valley, when the top of my convertible refused to come up, and I was fricaseed for several hours. Or I reflect on the torments of hell that are certainly awaiting me and nearly everyone I know, if there is any justice in a world beyond us.

Much the same principle applies to pain. When I am about to visit the dentist, gritting my two remaining sound teeth, I don't think of pleasant moments but of the more acute pains I have known in the hospital, and of all the thousands of people suffering grimly in wards and darkened rooms around the world. This makes a drilling comparatively easy to bear.

"It could be worse" is the only sensible and comforting attitude to take in circumstances of adversity. Which, this being a beastly hot day, even down on the dock where I am flailing over a torrid typewriter, reminds me of the fine old story about the man whose favorite phrase was "It could be worse!"

No matter what he heard, or was told, he would invariably shrug and remark, "It could be worse." One day he met a friend on the street. "Hear about Sam?" the friend asked. "He was in an apartment with Mrs. Glotz this afternoon, when her husband suddenly came home, shot Sam, shot his wife, and killed himself!"

The man shrugged. "It could be worse." "Worse!" exclaimed his friend. "Three people you know were shot to death this afternoon. How could it be worse?"

"Well," said the man, "if the husband had come home yesterday afternoon, he would have shot me!"

LOS ANGELES (AP) — "When the blue of the night meets the gold of the day ..."

The deep, distinctly American voice sounded just as mellow as ever, even though Bing Crosby had been absent from show business for a year.

Wearing a golf tan and a trim 152 pounds, the 70-year-old Crosby seemed little affected by the surgery that cost him part of his left lung last January.

While the operation didn't affect his singing voice, "I'm still a little stiff. The doctors made a big cut across my back, slicing through the nerves, so I'm still a little numb.

"But my golf game is coming back — I shot a 79 yesterday — and I've been playing tennis with the kids (Harry Lillis Jr., 16, Mary Frances, 14, Nathanjal, 12) and my wife Kathryn. Doubles, of course."

Bing had just flown down from his home at Hillsborough, near San Francisco, and went immediately into a rehearsal for his Oct. 9 television special for CBS. Sitting at a long table in a Vine Street studio, he read through the script with Pearl Bailey, Sandy Duncan and director Marty Pasetta, who recited the lines for the absent Bob Hope.

Others in the cast and production staff marveled as Bing sang effortlessly through a medley of Crosby tunes — "Blue Hawaii," "Sweet Leilani," "Down the Old Ox Road," "Going My Way," "In the Cool, Cool, Cool of the Evening," etc.

"Gee, there were a few in there, like 'Wrap Your Troubles in Dreams, that I had forgotten I had sung," he remarked afterward.

During the lunch break, Crosby talked of the ailment that has kept him out of the entertainment scene.

"It started with a pain in my shoulder, and I thought the old bursitis had come back," he said. "The doctors took X-rays, and they couldn't find anything. That's when I suggested they X-ray my lungs.

"They found a little spot on my left lung about the size of a dime. When they photographed it again, it had grown to the size of a large lemon. They decided to operate right away."

The growth was nonmalignant, the doctors found. Is diagnosed as nocardiosis, a rare fungus that infects the lungs through the air. A doctor figured Crosby had picked it up during a trip to Africa and suggested no further trips there.

"But it turned out that the disease is most prevalent in the San Joaquin valley, and I belong to a duck club there," Crosby added. He is planning another safari to Africa next year.

The first couple of months following the operation are a dim memory of pain and drugs, he said. Then he started getting his strength back, taking walks in the morning and watching television for diversion.

"Afternoon shows, mostly, like Merv Griffin and Mike Douglas," he said. "Also, we have Channel 9 in San Francisco which offers public television shows like Alistair Cooke's 'America' and Masterpiece Theater.

Bing will come back to Hollywood for his Christmas special and he plans a couple of guest shots on other shows. He was asking about movies — his last was the "Stagecoach" remake in 1966.

"They send me a script now and then," he remarked. "I see that Fred Astaire is doing a part in 'The Towering Inferno.' That's something I'd like to do, sort of a cameo.

"Or I might take a full-length part if I could find something I could do."

Meanwhile he leads the life of the Hillsborough squire, devoting his efforts to conservation and other causes. He has taken vacations at his Las Cruces home, on the tip of Baja California, and to Guadalajara, where he golfs and oversees a development he is backing.

Director of Milwaukee International Institute, Albert M. Davis, dies

STOCKHOLM, Sweden (AP) — Albert M. Davis, director of the International Institute of Milwaukee County and of Milwaukee's Holiday Folk Fair, died here late Friday night, the U.S. Consulate confirmed Saturday.

Neither the consulate nor police had information on his death, although Swedish officials said he died of natural causes.

Davis had traveled to Sweden to attend an international folk festival.

A former welfare worker and aide to former Milwaukee Mayor Frank Zeidler, Davis resigned last year as senior member of the Wisconsin Health and Social Services Board. He was appointed to the board in 1962.

He had directed the international institute since 1958 and was a leading figure among Milwaukee area ethnic groups.

Today in history

By The Associated Press

Today is Monday, Aug. 12, the 224th day of 1974. There are 141 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1898, the peace protocol ending the Spanish-American War was signed after hostilities lasting three months and 22 days.

On this date:

In 1658, a guard of eight men was established in the Dutch colony of New Amsterdam. It was the first police force in Ameriia.

In 1851, Isaac Singer of Pittstown, N.Y., was granted a patent on his sewing machine.

In 1914, Britain declared war on Austria-Hungary at the start of World War I.

In 1941, President Franklin D. Roosevelt and British Prime Minister Winston Churchill met at sea to draft the Atlantic Charter.

In 1959, token school integration began in Little Rock, Ark., as six black students enrolled in a formerly all-white high school.

In 1962, the Soviet Union made space history by sending a cosmonaut into orbit while another cosmonaut already was circling the earth.

Ten years ago: The United States sent four large turbojet transport planes to the Congo to help President Moise Tsombe fight a rebellion by hauling troops and supplies to combat areas.

Five years ago: Catholics, Protestants and police battled in Londonderry in the worst outbreak of violence in Northern Ireland in more than 30 years.

One year ago: American planes were carrying out heavy bombing around Cambodia's capital of Phnom Penh as the U.S. Congress was moving to end the bombing.

Today's birthdays: Mexican comedian Cantinflas is 63 years old. Movie actor John Derek is 48. Singer Buck Owens is 45.

Thought for today: Behind an able man there are always other able men — a Chinese proverb.

Reds, Pirates collide

7- 8 — Channels 9-11 — "The Rookies" has a very good episode with Georg Stanford Brown and guest Esther Anderson giving excellent performances in essentially a love story. She plays a student from Jamica who witnesses a killing. Terry (Brown) becomes far more interested in her than duty dictates. Miss Anderson is a luminous personality. Steve Sandor is also memorable as the victim. (R)

7 - 8 — Channels 2-7 — Two bitter enemies come together in a common cause on "Gunsmoke." The two are females, both strong-willed and with only the vilest feeling for each other. Their cause is to put an innocent rawhider in the handgman's hands for the murder of a saloon girl. Marshal Dillon has to see he gets a fair trial and then find out the reason for the conspiracy. (R)

7- 10 — Channel 5 — Major League Baseball Game Of The Week has the Cincinnati Reds hosting the Pittsburgh Pirates.

8- 8:30 — Channels 2-7 — Harry (Gale Gordon) gets greedy and Lucille Ball joins him on "Here's Lucy" as they go to a stream ostensibly to fish but really to pan for gold. J. Pat O'Malley is the man being conned and the late Janos Prohaska plays a bear. (R)

8- 11 — Channels 9-11 — "The Monday Night Movie: The Carpetbaggers" is based on Harold Robbins' sprawling, sexy novel set in Hollywood in the 1930s. It stars the late Alan Ladd, George Peppard, Carroll Baker, Bob Cummings, Elizabeth Ashley and Martha Hyer. (R)

8:30 - 9 — Channels 2-7 — "The New Dick Van Dyke Show" is a very funny one with Joan Hotchkis and George Furth as a pair of houseguests who nearly drive Dick and Jenny (Hope Lange) up the wall. She's the kind who criticizes and takes over everything and he just talks about his tennis game. (R)

9- 10 — Channels 2-7 — Voodoo comes to "Medical Center" which, at least, is different. Louise Sorel, who is very good, is the patient, a South American Indian who thinks she is under spell. Will Geer is an anthropology professor and Peter Haskell is the hospital's resident voodoo specialist. (R)
